British Deciding Whether They Are Fed Up With Socialism

LONDON, Feb. 23—Reports from key polling areas indicated that Britons voting to decide the fate of Socialism in the United Kingdom are turning out in larger numbers today than they did in the 1945 parliamentary race.

During the first four hours that the polls were open, women appeared in the majority, with the ratio in several areas as much as three women to one man.

Conservative headquarters confirmed at 7:30 a. m. (EST) that there was a "very heavy vote" in the London area and said there was mounting evidence that the women's poll was exceptionally heavy. The announcement added:

"We are pleased with the indications thus far."

They declared it was too early to comment on the national trend.

This is the day the British decide whether they are fed up with further socialization of its once proud and highly competitive industrial system.

As the polls opened, all the campaigning of recent weeks boiled down to that one sole issue.

There is no other.

For a short time, it appeared that Winston Churchill's dramatic proposal for an early approach for new atomic and world problem discussions with Soviet Russia "at highest level" might throw the election onto an international plane.

But reaction of the United States government and Great Britain's incumbent Labor regime seems to have driven home to the people that the present time is not ripe for any such meeting and that Anglo-American military strength is the best possible means of dealing with Russia for the foreseeable future.

It was noteworthy that the final electioneering editorials in the London press placed all emphasis upon promises of more and better food at lower prices.

Labor claims that Britain is healthier now than it ever was and enjoys far more food calories than it needs for subsistence.

This the Conservatives have not denied. But they have made regimented Britons' mouths water with visions of steaks and chops that have not been available in any quantity for years.

Thus, to paraphrase a napoleonic remark, the final battle of the ballots is being fought on highly personal intensely human lines.

The atomic bomb and the menace of war have been relegated to the background. For despite his hopes of peace talks, Churchill could do no more than Prime Minister Attlee in giving any assurances that catastrophe might not engulf the world some day.

It was logical that the Conservatives should turn to creature comforts of the present. The imponderables have proved almost too much for the public mind to grasp, while bacon, eggs and savory mutton are—or were—deliciously familiar to the British appetite.

This is admittedly a do or die election for Conservatism and that same situation will prevail should the Tories win.

They have made promises that may be difficult to fulfil. The Laborites claim that continued stiff rationing is all tied up with Britain's dollar shortage and economic crisis and that the balance has been held by gravest consideration of all factors, with no single one being permitted to override the others.

The Conservatives have made all-out efforts to prove that nationalization thus far has been a failure and that any more of it will be disastrous.

They have stressed the "levelling off" that is inevitable and have appealed to British pride to restore the enterprise and individualism that are part of an unregimented society.

HITTING THE JACKPOTS! A new technique described as a sure-fire way of beating one-armed bandits is depicted above by Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff, as he wields the sledge to one of three slot machines confiscated last week in a lightning-quick gambling raid in Circleville. The system paid off with a total of $160.55 in nickels, dimes and quarters. Deputy Walter Richards, one of the raiders, is pictured at the left awaiting his turn to wield the sledge.

Governor Tells Truman Ohio Soon To Face Coal Crisis

The governor telegraphed the President that "coal supply in Ohio is growing acutely scarce" and that "emergency situations have already risen, but local communities have been able thus far to solve them by getting special service." Then Lausche stated:

"Within a few days point will be reached where solution will no longer be possible."

The governor told the President he was wiring him "so you will be acquainted with my view of what the situation is in Ohio."

Lausche also issued a proclamation urging Ohioans to ration themselves voluntarily during the coal crisis. He struck at "certain consumers who have substantial supplies of coal on hand but in spite of that situation are continuing to receive increased supplies." He continued:

• • •

"IT IS APPARENT that difficulties and suffering can be avoided by an allocation of the coal supply in accordance with need. Therefore I ask that those who have an ample supply discontinue acquiring more coal so that allocations can be made to relieve emergency situations."

The governor made it plain to newsmen that his proclamation was designed to lend moral support to distributors who are being pressured by their better customers for stockpiles of coal.

Fuel supplies in some of Pickaway County's institutions were beginning to dwindle this week as the result of the strikes.

Berger hospital was reported to be operating on a one-day supply of coal Thursday while the Pickaway County home reportedly had only a 10-12 day supply in its bins.

Nurse Wanda Hildenbrand of the Berger hospital staff, reported that the institution's stoker plant had broken down and that an old furnace was being fired up to heat the hospital.

"We have to use the chunk coal in the furnace," she said. "We have a good supply of stoker coal, but only about a day's supply of lump coal."

Jim Mowery, County Home superintendent, said that he has received two truckloads of coal

Only One County School Still Closed By Illness

Only one Pickaway County school continued to be closed because of illness Thursday as all of the buildings opened for "tests."

The lone school is Saltcreek Township school, which dismissed Thursday when 33 percent of its lower grade boys and girls were absent. The overall absence for the school was listed at 28 percent.

Meanwhile, the other six county system schools which closed their doors Monday reopened for classes Thursday, according to George D. McDowell, county superintendent of schools, although absences still are high in most of the schools.

Jackson Township decided to continue its classwork Thursday when only 19 percent of its total enrollment was found absent.

• • •

ROBERT MOYER, Jackson superintendent, said that 25 percent of the elementary school youngsters failed to appear Thursday while only 14 percent of the high school girls and boys were absent.

Wayne Township school elected to continue classes when a total of 23.6 percent of its youngsters remained home.

"I believe the situation will improve now," opined Principal George Mallett. "Classes always are light on the first day following a dismissal."

Superintendent Alfred Axe reported that 22 percent of the total Walnut enrollment was missing Thursday but that "as far as I know school will continue unless the board orders differently."

Pickaway Township school, first of the county schools to close its doors, reported only 13 percent absenteeism Thursday as it resumed its operations.

McDowell said that while he had no report from either Madison or Duvall schools he was positive the two schools were resuming their classes Thursday. Neither school has a telephone.

Circleville schools, meanwhile, appear to be steadily improving, according to Superintendent Frank Fischer.

Fischer said that only 189 youngsters failed to report to classes Wednesday.

'Mercy' Victim Could Have Lived 2 Days Longer

MANCHESTER, N. H., Feb. 23—The state opened its murder case against Dr. Hermann N. Sander today with the charge that the handsome, 41-year-old physician had admitted his cancer patient would have lived two days longer if he had not injected air into her veins.

Sander's admission, Attorney General William L. Phinney said in his opening statement to the jury, was made to Dr. Robert E. Byron, who was called in as medical referee when the death chart of Mrs. Abbie Borroto, the patient, was under discussion.

Phinney declared that Dr. Sander admitted to Dr. Byron that Mrs. Borroto had died of air injections. The prosecutor added that Dr. Sander had told Dr. Byron he injected the air because

GOP JOINS DIXIECRATS

Final Vote Is Awaited On Toothless FEPC Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—A House Republican-Dixiecrat coalition early today tentatively handed President Truman a "toothless" victory by approving a Fair Employment Practices bill without criminal penalties.

Filibuster-weary legislators voted 221-178 to accept the substitute bill offered by Rep. McConnell, (R) Pa., in preference to the administration-supported measure by Rep. Powell, (D) N. Y.

However, a final vote on the measure will not be made until the House reassembles later today.

The final vote was delayed by the action of Rep. Biemiller, (D) Wis., who forced the delay by demanding a printed copy of the bill with all its amendments be read.

When the House meets today, the vote on the bill will be the first order of business.

The House adjourned at 3:20 a. m. after Biemiller's action.

• • •

THE VOTING early today came after more than 15 hours of continuous debate during which Southern Democrats threw their support to the McConnell bill, apparently as the lesser of two evils. They have strenuously opposed any form of civil rights legislation.

During debate several amendments were offered to the McConnell bill.

Originally it had called for no discrimination because of "race, creed or color." This was extended to include no discrimination because of "physical disability, political affiliation or sex."

Proponents of the administration bill immediately scheduled a meeting in Powell's office, presumably to decide whether to go along with the McConnell measure in the final vote, or to make an attempt to recommit the substitute bill.

The Powell bill would have called for a bar to racial discrimination in employment and unions under criminal penalties.

The McConnell bill provides for a Fair Employment Practices Commission "without teeth." It has no power to enforce its decisions and orders.

The bitter, hard-fought tug of war, waged with every parliamentary device in the rule book, had been in progress since Wednesday noon. The McConnell vote began at 2:45 a. m.

• • •

SLEEPY-EYED lawmakers straggled in and out of the chamber and a few spectators remained in the public galleries as floor leaders fought frantically to hold their lines.

Through the long session repeated moves were made by opponents of the administration legislation to adjourn the session, but to no avail.

Meanwhile, more and more Republicans joined the solid bloc of Southern Democrats who have been filibustering in an effort to block enactment of President Truman's number one civil rights bill.

Cooking School Is Booked For Revival In Circleville

Spokesmen for the Ohio Fuel as Co. and The Circleville Herald announced Thursday that the popular food institute will be presented in Circleville Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, March 7, 8 and 9.

The spokesmen said arrangements were completed Thursday after ironing out details with enterprising Circleville merchants who will play a major role in the show.

The last food institute given in Circleville was in 1942. Wartime restrictions forced cancellation of the cooking school until this year.

This year's performances will be held in Circleville Memorial Hall and each show will start at 2 p. m. daily. Doors of the hall will be opened at 12:30 p. m. so that visitors may visit and examine the many home articles which will be on display.

• • •

OFFICIALS said that plenty of chairs have been made available in Memorial Hall, that the structure is being put in readiness for the three-day event.

No admission charge will be made for any of the events and numerous prizes will be awarded at each session without cost or obligation to attendants.

The return of the food institute will be welcomed by the many women who looked forward to it each year before the war caused it to be discontinued in 1942.

For women who never have had the opportunity to attend its sessions, this will be a new and enjoyable experience.

A beautiful New Freedom gas kitchen will be installed on

AFL Chieftain OKs Government Mine Seizure

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—AFL President William Green today advocated government seizure of the coal mines as a "last resort" method of ending the coal strike.

Green said that he was "not sure" whether the time was ripe for such action, but he commented that newspaper reports indicate "a critical stage in some places."

He told a Senate judiciary subcommittee that he was certain the miners would go back to work if the government takes over and said he believed President Truman has the right to order seizure without authorization from Congress.

Meanwhile, Rep. Case, (R) S. D., announced he will introduce a bill authorizing President Tru-

Two men indicted by Pickaway County grand jury last week have been placed on probation by Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

NO HALLUCINATIONS?

Navy Officer Is Certain 'Saucers' Are From Mars

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—A U. S. Navy rocket missile research expert declared his belief today that "flying saucers" he has investigated actually were space ships operated by "animate, intelligent beings," possibly from Mars.

Commander Robert B. McLaughlin, writing in the current issue of True Magazine, said that questioning of Navy observers who spotted and tracked an object in April, 1949, "produced almost unanimous judgment" it was a "flying saucer."

Analyzing the data turned in by five Navy researchers and scientists who spotted the object near the White Sands, N. M., proving grounds, McLaughlin wrote the object was elliptical in shape and about 105 feet in diameter. He declared it was speeding at about four miles per second at an altitude of approximately 56 miles, and added:

"I am convinced that it was a flying saucer and, further, that these disks are space ships from another planet, operated by animate, intelligent beings.

• • •

"HALLUCINATION? Optical illusion? I think it is reasonable to say that illusions do not appear simultaneously and identically to five different trained weather observers. I cannot think of any other possibilities. Reliable observers saw the object."

McLaughlin asserted that the design, construction and operations of the saucer indicated to him that a "very superior intelligence is at work; not only at work, but present within the disks."

The rocket expert continued: "Where the saucers come from can only be answered by guesswork. My guess is Mars.

"Mars 'cooled off' and perhaps became capable of supporting some form of life millions of years before earth did. The Martians, if such there be, would have a big start in scientific development.

"What are the saucers up to? So far, their behavior would indicate that they are interested only in observing us. The fact that the saucers' operations so far have been peaceful also seems to knock out the suspicion that they have been launched by a foreign earth power, such as Russia.

"If it is not fantastic for us to explore other planets, why should it be fantastic for Martians, say, to visit us."

British Poll Odds Given

Local Officials Testify In Red Martin's Trial

Two neighbors of accused Slayer Cecil B. "Red" Martin testified in Columbus court Thursday that they heard screams in Martin's Columbus home the night that Theodore B. White, 58, was killed.

Mrs. Beatrice Anderson and Robert Graham testified that they were living in a duplex next door to the Martin home last June 4, the time of the slaying.

Martin's trial on first degree murder charges was reopened Thursday after a one-day Washington birthday recess with resumption of testimony by Mrs. Betty Arnett, 22. She was picked up with Martin in White's car.

Mrs. Arnett, a pretty, slim, dark-haired girl, nervously told the court that she once heard White threaten not to let anyone use his car. As her fingers twined tensely around dark brown gloves, Mrs. Arnett said she was not absolutely sure White's statement was directed at Martin.

Next to take the stand was Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff who identified various exhibits presented by Franklin County Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett.

One exhibit was a group of four pictures taken by the sheriff's photographer-son, Dwight, at the shallow sandy grave on the bank of Little Walnut Creek near Ashville where White's body was found June 13.

Police Chief Denies All Accusations

Cop Boss May Talk To His Attorney

"Lies! Just a pack of lies!"

That was Circleville Police Chief William McCrady's reaction Thursday to charges of incorrect performance of duty hurled in open council meeting by Councilman George Crites Tuesday.

As one local attorney put it: "Bugs denied the allegations and defied the allegator."

McCrady said he was undecided whether he would bring court action for slander against the councilman.

"I'll have to talk with my attorney first," he said. Then he asked:

"What can a little rag-tail like me do against a boy that has $150,000 to make a legal fight last all the way up to the Supreme Court?"

In council chamber Tuesday, Crites charged the little Irish police chief with protecting local gamblers. Said McCrady:

"If the thing had been looked into as carefully as it should have before he opened his mouth, it would be found there are fewer gamblers in town today than there were when I first came on." Chief McCrady has been in police work 30-odd years.

• • •

McCRADY EMPHASIZED, "I get my orders from the safety director, who gets them from the mayor." Then he said:

"If they want these joints cracked around here, let them issue the orders. I'll crack them."

McCrady denied he had ever threatened to suspend patrolmen who asked permission to do something about gambling. With respect to a charge hurled by Crites that the chief refused to cooperate with other law enforcement officials, he was halfway between laughter and smoky indignation.

"He said the boy across the street was afraid I'd tip somebody off." The chief made a gesture of contempt. "I never have tipped anybody off."

By "the boy across the street" McCrady referred to Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radclfif.

Then the chief grinned. "I understand Crites got an earful from the American Legion. They don't have any slot machines over there."

A Legion member said Thursday that the local post did have slot machines Wednesday morning, but had none Wednesday night.

Mayor Fixes Police Radio

Circleville and Pickaway County law enforcement offices were without two-way radio operation nearly six hours Thursday.

The police reported that the system "went on the blink" at about 4 a. m. Thursday.

Mayor Thurman I. Miller, also a professional radio mechanic by trade, fixed the trouble at about 10 a. m. when he critically eyed the master set in the third floor of City Hall, plucked out a belligerent fuse and inserted an auto fuse.

Police Chief Denies All Accusations

Crites in council was that McCrady consistently wears incorrect uniform, actually no uniform at all.

"He goes around," said Crites, "with a gun sticking out of one pocket, a blackjack out the other. The state code says the police chief is supposed to set a good example for his men."

All in the interest of detective work, retorted the Irish cop Thursday.

* * *

"AND WHAT DO you think would happen," he demanded, "if I walked in one of these stores all dressed up in a uniform. You can't catch any shoplifters that way."

And while on the subject of catching crooks, the chief said: "It is not the first duty of an officer to catch criminals. His first duty is to prevent crime. And that's what I'm trying to do."

The chief said he is not required to wear a uniform on duty, that a long-forgotten city ordinance gives him authority to dress as a plainclothesman—all in the interest of sleuthing and detecting and prevention of crime.

It is for similar reasons, the chief claims, that one police cruiser remains unlettered. "How can you catch anyone if you ride around in a car that's all lettered up?" he demanded.

In his council chamber blast Crites accused the police chief of bungling the job of lifting fingerprints, called him "the worst fingerprint artist in the world." Referring to a recent jewelry store robbery, Crites said McCrady went down to take fingerprints and "rubbed them all off."

And to all this McCrady replied simply:

"I never claimed to be a fingerprint expert. But somebody has to take them, and nobody else in the department has learned how."

Concerning Crites' assertion that he has failed to enforce parking meter laws, McCrady said:

* * *

"DO THEY WANT me to do everything around here? I've got men out working on meters. What more do they want? And just what are these things I've failed to do?"

Crites said Tuesday, "Bugs has been a thorn in the side of every mayor and safety director. He won't do it. The city spends about $20,000 a year on the police department. About 50 percent of the money is thrown away."

To which McCrady replied: "Let's find out about that thorn-in-the-side business." He addressed the question to Safety Director C. O. Leist, who said:

"You've never been a thorn in my side. I've never had any trouble with you. Nothing but cooperation."

"Some of the patrolmen," McCrady said, "complain that they can't do anything on their own. That they have to ask the chief about everything they do.

"Well, that's right. They do. I'm the only one who can give them orders. And that's by law. The safety director can't tell them what to do directly. He has to give me the orders."

The storm generated in council Tuesday by Crites was centered on an ordinance designed to reduce the chief's pay from $211.75 per month to $150. The bill was tabled Feb. 7.

Crites wound up his speech with a motion to order the bill off the table. The motion was defeated four to three.

It was made clear, however, that the ordinance was not dead and that a motion to bring the bill off the table could be brought up again.

The Columbus Dispatch Thursday quoted McCrady as saying:

* * *

"THERE IS NO truth in the fact that I am protecting gamblers. Let Crites prove it. We have a jealous sheriff who is mad because I took some Cincinnati detectives to a place here to recover some stolen property.

"I have called other law enforcement officers every time the opportunity has presented itself to do so. The sheriff would do well to clean up the county, he has plenty of spots operating there."

The Dispatch said Sheriff Radcliff's reaction was:

Only 1.5 Pct. Of Ashville TB Tests Feared

Only 1.5 percent of the 658 persons who submitted to the mass x-ray program in Ashville Feb. 7 were found "suspect" of tuberculosis.

"That doesn't mean that any of them have the disease at all," hastily pointed out Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, as he thumbed through the report.

"Those x-rays which were taken during the mass exam were miniature pictures," he pointed out. "We are contacting the 10 'suspect' cases now so that the larger 14x10 inch pictures may be made to determine whether they actually have contracted the disease."

The doctor continued that the state department used the miniature prints only as a sample indicator, and listing "suspect" anything that "looks the least bit suspicious."

"I'm glad to add that none of the pupils of Ashville school, its teachers, cooks or bus drivers were listed among the 'suspect' cases," Blackburn said.

"All of the school tests proved negative."

Howard Sweetman Injured When Struck By Auto

Howard Sweetman, 73, former Pickaway County surveyor, was injured seriously at 6:35 p. m. Wednesday when he was struck by an auto on North Court street.

Officer George Green reported that Sweetman was struck by an auto driven by Robert Grant, 23-year-old Columbus policeman, as he attempted to walk across court street at the intersection of Pinckney street.

Grant stated that Sweetman had started across the street against the red light and added that he had not seen the man in the driving rain. Green said that Grant apparently had been driving slowly.

"His auto was stopped only a very short distance from the scene," Green said.

Sweetman was rushed into Berger hospital for emergency treatment. He was said to be suffering from head injuries. His condition Thursday was reported "poor." His health has been failing the last few years.

Town To Get Bomb Shelter

Mayor Fred P. James said late yesterday that the 10-by-12 foot structure would be used to store village records.

Originally conceived as a fireproof storage place with a 12-inch ceiling of reinforced concrete, a layer of lead will be added around it to make it impervious to atom or H-bomb rays.

Bradley To Tell Enemy Weapons

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Gen. Omar Bradley goes to Capitol Hill today to report on the possible types of mass-destruction weapons an enemy might use against United States and her big cities.

Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was called to a closed-door meeting of the congressional atomic committee, which is opening a study of how to protect city civilian populations in event of an atomic-hydrogen Pearl Harbor.

Hooded Quartet Gets $350,000 Worth Of Gems

CLEVELAND, Feb. 23—Four hooded bandits broke into the home of multi-millionaire William G. Mather early today, slugged his wife and looted a safe of an estimated $350,000 in uninsured jewels.

Police in suburban Bratenahl said that the thugs, one of them armed with a submachinegun, threatened to harm Mather if his wife did not reveal the combination to the safe.

Cleveland detectives and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation planned to question the domestic staff at the exclusive residential mansion. It was learned that the quartet entered the home through a rear servants door which was unlocked.

One of the kitchen maids, Miss Elizabeth Demeter, 23, told police the door was bolted when she came to work at 11 p. m.

The robbers took only $100 in cash, but the jewelry stolen included three diamond necklaces and a pearl strand, each valued at $25,000 by Mrs. Mather.

Bratnahl Police Chief William l'Estrange said "this was not an amateur job. They had a complete layout. They knew just where to go."

The robbers were all dressed in loose-fitting brown coveralls and their brown hoods had openings only for their eyes. The brown motif was completed with brown gloves and brown stockings worn over their shoes.

Local Officials Testify In Red Martin's Trial

Bartlett also produced for the sheriff's identification a cameo tie clasp, a discolored tie and a sealed coffee can containing bloody paper napkins which were found stuffed in the victim's mouth.

Dr. Lloyd Jonnes, Pickaway County coroner, testified that the autopsy on White disclosed death due to a fractured skull.

Mrs. Anderson testified that Martin was on the porch of his home and talked to a "colored man" who came up and talked to him on the Saturday night of the murder.

She said the first man left and that "Cecil" called White into the house when the latter drove up to the curb and parked his car.

She told the court that a few minutes after White and Martin went into the house she heard two yells and then a "colored fellow" ran out of the house.

Amos Ryall, Martin's accused accomplice, was brought into the court room in handcuffs and identified by Mrs. Anderson as the "colored man" she saw talking to Martin.

Ohio Coal Crisis Seen

this week to alleviate a threatened serious shortage in the Home.

"We had only about a four-day supply Monday," Mowery said. "With the two truckloads though we're in pretty good shape now."

The coal bins in Circleville schools are well filled, according to Virgil Cress, clerk to the city board of education.

"I believe we have enough coal right now to carry us through," Cress said.

Pickaway County Children's Home also was feeling the bite of the shortage until Superintendent Winfield Koch contracted shipments by truck.

Koch said the Children's Home has been receiving regular shipments via truck.

Pickaway County schools, for the most part, are in good shape, according to George D. McDowell, county superintendent of schools.

"We found that some of the schools were watching diminishing supplies when we made a survey last week," McDowell reported, "although the majority seemed to be fairly well stocked.

"None has contacted me to report drastic shortages," he added.

Cincinnati coal merchants warned that the bottom is in sight. Columbus dealers reported only a four or five-day supply. Akron suppliers may ask Mayor Charles E. Slusser for emergency rationing powers.

* * *

CLEVELAND'S emergency supply is gone, although schools, hospitals and most public buildings have enough coal for three or four weeks.

Mayor Thomas A. Burke began rationing procedures Wednesday, but 150 families were still without fuel today.

In Geneva, school and hospital officials reported a four-to-six-week supply on hand, but a survey of coal dealers showed that stockpiles were virtually cleaned out.

The Ashtabula council unanimously passed an ordinance permitting the rationing of coal. In Fremont, a rubber company had to lend the high school 30 tons of coal to see the institution through the next two weeks.

Only in Portsmouth was there a reversal of the trend. There the Detroit Steel Corporation's Portsmouth plant announced that coke production would be resumed fullscale within a few days.

The company signed an agreement with the United Mine Workers to permit its captive Eastern Kentucky mines to resume operations.

An emergency shipment of about 14 carloads was promised Cleveland within a week but will do little to alleviate the situation in the state's biggest city. Meanwhile, orders from homeowners for the most part could not be filled. Even emergency supplies were exhausted.

In Cincinnati, dealers warned that "so far as domestic coal is concerned, we are practically out." Institutions still have a short supply, although the University of Cincinnati has a bare week's supply. Dean Norman P. Auburn said then the institution might have to close.

Ohio State university in Columbus also is down to a week's supply, while the city itself is down to four or five days. Dealers are voluntarily rationing deliveries to a ton or a half-ton rate. A delivery of 250 tons to the school system prevented a shutdown temporarily.

NATIONAL TRIP AHEAD?

4 County 4-H Leaders Tagged For State Honors

Four outstanding Pickaway County 4-H Club boys and girls have been selected as candidates for statewide honors.

Genevieve Alley, county home demonstration agent, said the names and records of the four 4-H'ers have been forwarded to a state selection committee as possible delegates to the National and Founders' 4-H Club camps.

Only two boys and two girls from the entire state will be selected to attend the two national camps, said Miss Alley, while each county will submit the names of four boys and girls to be considered.

"Each of the four members we have selected are outstanding in their work," Miss Alley said. "Each has a 4-H Club record which is brimful."

Dick, 20-year-old member of Monroe Future Farmers Club has been a club member and junior leader for eight years and has completed 14 projects.

• • •

THE LAD WAS graduated by Monroe Township school in 1947 and was the winner of the annual Danforth award for 4-H'ers last year. In addition he is a member of the county 4-H Club advisory council and a member of the County Extensioneers Club. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dick of Monroe Township and is at present farming with his father.

Jean Dearth, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Dearth of Kingston Route 1, is a senior in Saltcreek Township school and has been in 4-H Club activities eight years. She has completed 12 projects.

In addition, the Saltcreek lass has held all offices in her Saltcreek Victory Stitchers Club, a member of the County Extensioneers and has been outstanding in her camp counseling work.

Miss Dearth was the 1949 "dress-up-dress" winner during the Ohio State Fair and a delegate to the Ohio-West Virginia Rural Youth Conference last Fall.

David Six, 18, is a member of the Duval Go-Getters Livestock Club and has completed seven projects during his three years of clubwork.

The young farmer is president of the County Extensioneers and was secretary of the Go-Getters Club last year. He was graduated by Ashville school last year.

In addition, Six was one of the county delegates attending the Ohio-West Virginia Conference also last Fall. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Six.

• • •

LOIS DEFENBAUGH, 18, is a freshman enrolled in Ohio State university. She plans to major in home economics.

Miss Defenbaugh has been engaged in 4-H Club activities seven years and has completed 17 projects. She is a member of both the Saltcreek Stitch and Chatter Club and the Saltcreek Valley Livestock Club, while assisting as adviser for the Saltcreek Junior Stitch and Chatter Club.

The girl has held offices in both senior clubs as well as proving outstanding as a camp counselor. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Defenbaugh.

Miss Alley said the names of the four youngsters will be sent into the state office, where a committee consisting of extension agents and members of the state staff will judge which pairs of boys and girls will be selected to attend the two camps.

The selections are to be completed during National 4-H Club week—March 5 through 12.

Chaw Tobacco Use In U.S. Is On Down Trend

The Agriculture Department said today that cut plug and scrap chewing tobacco consumption is expected to drop for the sixth straight year in 1950. Eighty-nine million pounds were produced last year for a drop of about eight million pounds from the year before.

More cigarets were smoked last year than in any previous year. The department said 352 billion butts were puffed away. That's almost seven cigaretes a day for each man, woman and child in the United States.

Cigar consumption dropped slightly last year to 5.6 billion, pipe tobacco was steady at 108 million pounds and snuff, too, held steady at 41 million pounds.

Teen Tips

Top glamor-aid for girls and good-groomer for boys is a deodorant. It enhances appealing daintiness for girls and attractive cleanliness for boys—making you "nice to be near" in spite of heat, humidity, sports or dancing.

Don't get the wrong idea. Deodorants aren't merely pretty-makers or cosmetics for girls and women. If you perspire, you need one—and everybody perspires, masculine and feminine. The only difference is that boys and men use unperfumed deodorants while girls sometimes use scented deodorants or anti-perspirants, according to preference.

Good deodorants prevent perspiration odor, but do not check perspiration. An unscented cream deodorant is the best choice for boys and men and some girls also prefer it, especially if the skin of the underarms is sensitive and easily irritated. This does not harm fabrics, but, since it doesn't check perspiration, some girls also use dress-shields to protect clothing. Just apply a fingertipful of the unscented white cream deodorant to the underarms after bathing and it disappears instantly into the skin, leaving no trace of greasiness or stickiness. You're not conscious of it at all. Make this a daily habit like brushing your teeth for your own satisfaction and for the sake of others who are near you.

For girls and women, there are anti-perspirants in cream or liquid form. These stop or check perspiration from one to five days, depending on the individual, and are used when it's important to protect fragile dress fabrics from possible perspiration moisture—a dress that is too sheer for dress-shields, a sleeveless sundress or an evening dress. Test it, though, before trusting it completely when you plan to wear a new dress because some anti-perspirants are more effective on some people than others. Some girls find they always depend on dress-shields for utmost protection from ugly stains.

For information about these deodorants and anti-perspirants, write to Elinor Williams in care of The Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply.

$15,000 Awarded After Accident

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—Jay J. Demarest of Columbus is to get $15,000 from the Columbus Green Cabs, Inc., and John E. Spoonster of Wadsworth for the death of his wife and his injuries in a Jan. 17, 1948 traffic accident.

Demarest was granted the judgment at the climax of a five-day trial here. He and his wife were passengers in a cab which collided with Spoonster's auto. His attorney, Paul M. Herbert, had filed a suit for $25,000.

WASHINGTON REPORT

By SENATOR ROBERT A. TAFT

One of the favorite slogans of those who are interested in establishing in this country a socialized state is "Social Insurance." It has a friendly sound and is made to look like a development of one of the most typical features of a free economy. It has almost become a "virtue" word. As a matter of fact, it is one of the most effective weapons to turn over to the federal government a predominate power in the daily lives of our people.

It is already in effect as Old Age and Survivors Insurance. It has been approved by the House of Representatives for permanent disability.

It is strongly urged for medical care as the principal feature of the program to socialize medicine. In England it now covers every contingency from the cradle to the grave.

The very term, however, is a misrepresentation. It is not insurance, but rather a system of taxation to support a plan of government payments to persons who, at the time, are not earning those payments.

It is not insurance, because insurance is a voluntary contract. Social insurance is compulsory. It is not insurance, because insurance is the payment of a sum which fairly represents the risk insured against, a plan by which a number of people spread the risks of some type of misfortune which may happen to some of them, or a plan by which one person spreads over a long period of time the risk of something which may happen to him all at one time.

* * *

THE PAYMENTS made in social insurance have little if any relation to the risk insured against. The payroll deductions on which most social insurance is based have all the characteristics of taxation. They are compulsory. The amount paid has only a remote relation, if any, to the valuation of the risk involved or to the service utimately received. Thus, under the existing old age insurance, persons may receive substantial pensions whose payroll taxes have lasted for only a short time and persons in the $1,200 income group get much more for their money than those in the $3,000 group. Under the compulsory medical insurance, a $3,000 man without a family may pay ten times as much for his medical care as does the $1,000 man with a wife and three children.

I am in favor of the old age insurance plan. But we would do a much better job if we recognized that it is not insurance but a system of taxation to help support the aged. The same thing is true of unemployment insurance supported by a tax of 3 per cent of payroll.

Payroll taxes, in general, are passed on to the consumer and increase the price of goods. This is certainly true of that portion paid by the employer which becomes a cost of production for all those in the industry. It is partially true of the portion paid by employees, because wage negotiations are largely conducted on a take-home pay basis. The result is that the cost of these programs is a burden on the entire community, paid for the most part in higher prices for food and clothing and every other necessity. Every family in the land is taxed to make these payments. The total amount of these payments is already considerable.

THE 1951 BUDGET estimates payments under the old age insurance plan of $2.3 billion, under unemployment compensation of $1.5 billion, under other retirement funds of another billion dollars, a total of more than $4.5 billion. If this is a tax, we have to consider how large a burden we can safely or properly place on people who are working, to support those who at the time are not paying their way. Furthermore, the idea of insurance usually involves a federal fund and so, as in the case of medicine, it means not only the socialization but the nationalization of the medical care or the other free service involved.

Social insurance in some fields has real merit, but it should be recognized for what it is—taxation of the people to provide great national services expending vast sums of money for those who, in the past, have paid their own way.

Quaker Groups Ask Surplus Food Be Used

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 — A group of 50 farmers, who met in Washington under the auspices of two Quaker organizations, has issued a statement calling on the government to give away surplus food rather than letting it rot.

The group said:

"There is no surplus of food from the viewpoint of the world as a whole. Millions of people in many countries, including our own, are miserably undernourished while 'surplus' farm products rot in storage."

The group asked that the U. S. economy of "abundance" be hitched tight to international planning for effective distribution, and declared:

"We believe that this is the great religious challenge of our times, and we appeal, not only to our government, but to individual citizens, that we now show ourselves willing to use our resources for peace."

The Time The Anti-Trust Lawyers Killed Their Own Case!

For ten years the anti-trust lawyers have been attacking the business methods that make it possible to give the public the best quality food at the lowest prices.

In our last ad we told you how Federal Judge W. H. Atwell, at Dallas, threw the anti-trust lawyers and all their inflammatory charges against A&P right out of his court.

But the anti-trust lawyers were not satisfied with decisions against them by three federal judges.

They Appealed to New Orleans

So they appealed Judge Atwell's decision to the three-judge Circuit Court at New Orleans.

One of the three, Judge Curtis L. Waller, agreed with Judge Atwell that the case should be dismissed.

The other two members of the Circuit Court, Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, Jr., and Judge Allen Cox, although saying the case should be tried, agreed that the indictment was vague and contained many allegations which were inflammatory.

They decided that Judge Atwell at Dallas should protect A&P from these inflammatory allegations and could order the anti-trust lawyers to supply the defendants with a bill of particulars.

So the case was back in Dallas again.

He said that without this inflammatory and prejudicial matter the Grand Jury might never have returned the indictment.

Judge Atwell said to the anti-trust lawyers:

"There are many statements in the indictment which are not at all in violation, and are highly prejudicial and inflammatory."

The anti-trust lawyers objected. They advanced an amazing argument. They said that the removal of their inflammatory allegations (which all four judges had agreed did not belong in the indictment) destroyed their case.

Judge Atwell instructed the anti-trust lawyers to furnish the court with a bill of particulars. In short, he wanted specific charges instead of vague generalities. He set the deadline for furnishing this material at January 15th, 1944.

When the anti-trust lawyers twice asked for more time, pleading sickness among their staff, Judge Atwell extended the time to February 25th because he believed that they were honestly trying, in good faith, to prepare the material he had requested.

Actually, it developed, they were using the time to get ready to drop the case in Dallas and start it in another court.

They Quit in Dallas

On February 26th, while the judge was still waiting for his answer, and without any previous notice to him, the anti-trust lawyers gave a story to the newspapers in Washington, announcing that they were dropping the case in Dallas.

They said that it was their intention "to file a substantially similar suit in an appropriate jurisdiction at an early date."

The "early date" turned out to be the same day.

As soon as one anti-trust lawyer killed the case in Dallas, another anti-trust lawyer filed a new case in Danville, Illinois. This new case made most of the same allegations that had been made and dropped in Dallas; and that are being made against us today.

So now, according to the anti-trust lawyers, all four judges who had ruled on the Dallas case were wrong.

When Judge Atwell heard of their action he ordered the anti-trust lawyers to prepare an order for his signature dismissing the Dallas case.

In signing this order he said to the anti-trust lawyers:

"This nolle prosequi does not have the sanction or approval of this court. That is not necessary, nor that the government ask for the court's approval.

"It is, however, a matter that may be presented to the other court and may be of interest to the people at large."

So after their efforts to destroy A&P had failed in Washington, D. C., Wilson, North Carolina, and Dallas, Texas, the anti-trust lawyers moved on to Danville, Illinois.

They were still determined to destroy this company which had brought more and better food at lower cost to millions of American families.

They Were Wrong Three Times Before!

Three times the anti-trust lawyers went into federal courts and made serious and damaging charges against A&P.

Three times federal judges said the anti-trust lawyers were wrong and rendered decisions against them.

In previous ads in this series we told you about these other anti-trust "cases" involving us, which the judges said were not cases at all.

We think you should know about these previous cases, because once again the anti-trust lawyers are making damaging "allegations" that could seriously affect our business if they were believed by the public.

There was the time in Washington, D. C., when they said we and other good American citizens conspired to fix the price of bread in that city.

This was the time Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough ruled that A&P and the other defendants did not even need to put in a defense. He instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of "not guilty".

It was the time Judge Goldsborough said to the anti-trust lawyers:

"If you were to show this record to any experienced trial lawyer in the world, he would tell you that there was not any evidence at all.

"Honestly, I have never in my over forty years' experience seen tried a case that was as absolutely devoid of evidence as this. That is the honest truth. I have never seen one like it."

There was the time in Wilson, North Carolina, they said we and other good American citizens conspired to fix prices paid farmers for their potatoes.

This was the time Federal Judge C. C. Wyche directed the jury to bring in a verdict of "not guilty".

It was the time Judge Wyche said to the anti-trust lawyers:

"In my opinion there is no testimony produced from which it can reasonably be inferred that the defendants entered into a combination to depress or lower the price of potatoes.

"I might say that I never tried a case in my life where a greater effort, more work, more investigation had been done, combing almost with a fine-tooth comb to gather evidence.

"But, as was said a long time ago, you can't make brick without straw, and you can't make a case without facts."

There was the time in Dallas, Texas, when they made practically the same "allegations" they are making today.

This was the time Federal Judge W. H. Atwell ruled that the case should not even be tried. He said that the indictment contained inflammatory statements that he would not permit to be presented to a jury.

It was the time Judge Atwell said to the anti-trust lawyers:

"I know of no American rule, and I wish I had the power to underscore the word 'American,' which permits us to try a man because of his size.

"If I thought I was presiding over a court and that I might have to sentence some person because he was a great big fellow, or because he was a Lilliputian, I would feel like resigning. God knows we don't want it ever to occur in America that the size is going to determine whether a man is guilty or innocent."

Less U.S. Spending Is Said Needed

Economist Points To Buyer Action

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—Less government spending would mean a greater demand for "food and shelter, clothing, radio, television, amusements and all types of durable consumer goods."

This statement came yesterday from Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, economics expert for International News Service, speaking before the Ohio Savings and Loan League in Columbus. He said:

"The give-away politicians have tended to pull the wool over the eyes of the public by making it appear that balancing the federal budget would be negative. They imply that prudence would deprive the people of valuable services."

"This specious doctrine that prudence leads to national austerity is sheer bunk. On the contrary, if forbearance in government spending were translated into tax relief, the effect would be to increase the net take-home pay of every citizen."

The INS commentator told the building and loan executives:

• • •

"IN THE LIGHT of the Cold War and the $257 billion accumulated debt and the resultant fiscal crisis, it behooves Uncle Sam to shift back to the states, the localities and to private industry and investment all of the activities which they are ready and able to carry on. This means reversing the trend toward ever growing centralized government. The present situation calls for the very reverse of socialism."

He said:

"It is sheer immaturity for the budget makers to set up a rubber yardstick calling for as much economy as is consistent with a politician's dream for high level spending.

"The swollen character of the debt and the recurrence of deficits call for postponement or even abandonment of some schemes which under other circumstances might have been peaceably acceptable.

"In the nature of things, budget making is a discipline, entailing selection and rejection of items competing for favorable attention. It signifies a managerial breakdown when budgetmaking is looked upon as mere addition of the appetites of pressure groups."

Looking Ahead

By George Benson
President
Harding College

The farming people of Arkansas banded together last week in a significant movement for mutual financial benefit. It isn't political. No frantic appeals for funds are being sent up to Washington. Home folks are simply getting together, looking a common economic problem squarely in the eye, and pooling their ideas, energies and resources to find a solution. It seems to me there are several good lessons in this approach.

Farm agencies had found that 1,500,000 acres of productive Arkansas farms would lie fallow when spring planting began.

About 500,000 acres is extremely rich cotton and rice land removed from production by federal acreage control—in a logical outgrowth of the present price support program. The other 1,000,000 acres is mostly in small hill farms on which cotton has failed as a paying crop. This much productive land out of use would hurt many farmers directly and everybody in the state indirectly by holding down both farm commodities production and the creation of wealth.

• • •

THE GOVERNOR called a meeting. All farm groups were represented. An "Action Program" was set up, with the president of the state University as director. Organizations of such diverse political views as the Farmers Union and the Farm Bureau Federation pledged 100 percent support.

THE program recognizes (and this is significant) the almost limitless opportunities of a free market, the adaptability of our soils to many uses, and the need for agricultural education on the part of a large percentage of our farm population.

Farmers of the rich cotton and rice lands, for instance, will be reached and told how they may plant, cultivate, harvest and market soybeans and alfalfa, two highly remunerative crops now in big demand on the market. The hill farmers will be helped into livestock production on acres that wouldn't pay off in cotton but will make fine pastures and feed crops. Farm feeds imported last year cost Arkansas farmers $35,000,000. So this market is wide open to Arkansas producers of feed crops.

The results, if successful, would be like putting 15,000 farm families (with 100-acre farms) on a self supporting basis, from scratch.

• • •

OR LIKE PUTTING perhaps twice that many established farmers in the profit column who otherwise might go in the red, support programs notwithstanding. Instead of a skyrocketing federal outlay to support a market-glutting farm production, we have here, in the Arkansas farmers' self-reliant action, the intelligent turning of land into newly developing crops for which the consuming public will pay good prices.

This has the basic elements of sane economics. Add to it, constant well-supported research to develop new, improved farming methods that would lower crop production costs (and thus the consumer price)—and we have the bread basis for an economically sound long range program.

In contrast to the free market idea, toward which the Arkansas farm leaders are catering in this instance, we have an example at hand of the politically-planned "controlled" economics.

It's the potato story. It is ridiculous. It would even be amusing if so much of the taxpayers' money weren't involved. Since undertaking the economic control of potatoes, the federal government has spent about $500,000,000 buying spuds at $1.25 a bushel. The artificially niked retail price hit consumers (taxpayers) for untold additional millions at the retail markets.

The government burned millions of dollars worth of its potato hoard. It now is treating the remaining mountain of spuds with chemical dyes and selling them back to the farmers at 1 cent per 100 pounds, for swine feed. Meantime, a New Orleans food broker has just imported a million pounds of Canadian potatoes to sell to American housewives. He truthfully points out that he can buy and deliver the Canadian spuds cheaper than he can the politically-regulated potatoes of Maine and Idaho. Political planning and potato economics don't seem to mix.

How to Get That Homework Done

Miss Gilbert, our grammar school principal, spoke the other night at the regular Parent-Teachers' meeting, on getting children to do their homework when they want to listen to the radio.

"We musn't give them a flat 'no'," Miss Gilbert said. "If we adults really believe in tolerance and moderation, we should instill these qualities in our children. Listening to the radio is fine—in moderation—as long as homework gets done, too."

From where I sit, the lady was dead-right. This radio vs. homework problem is a wonderful way to see to it that our youngsters acquire the sensible moderate habits they'll need later on.

I've never believed in hard and fast rules—except where absolutely necessary. Let the other fellow do as he likes, as long as he's temperate and tolerant. Guess that's why I've never felt we should quarrel with the fellow who is partial to a glass of beer—the "Beverage of Moderation."

GENERAL JOHN REGAN

SOME writers among the Irish, known to be a humor-loving people, have lately been producing a much more serious sort of literature. The dramatist Sean O'Casey, for example, has bitterly offended many of his fellow-countrymen by writing of the seamy side of Irish life.

Such offense would not have been committed by the late vicar James O. Hannay, better known under his pen-name of George A. Birmingham. His novels all looked on the laughable side of life.

Perhaps his best novel, "General John Regan," told of the visit of an American millionaire to a West Irish town, which was so sleepy that he decided to wake it up. He therefore expressed his wonder that the town had never erected a statue to its most famous native son, General John Regan, who had helped Bolivia win its independence. The real reason for this seeming indifference was that General Regan never existed. Not knowing this and being unwilling to be found wanting, the whole town set to work to create a memorial. The leader, Dr. Lucius O'Grady, more than suspected the truth, but headed the movement out of a sheer love of excitement. Eventually the statue was erected by the gift of the millionaire, and the town had a new hero.

"General John Regan" was a successful play in New York a generation ago. It is still remembered partly because in it the playwright Noel Coward began his dramatic career in a non-speaking part.

WHAT IS FRIENDSHIP?

HOW FAR should a man go for his friend? There have been demands that Secretary of State Dean Acheson should resign because he has said that Alger Hiss is still his friend despite his conviction for perjury. Acheson went further and quoted the New Testament, where a certain distinguished authority advocated visiting those in prison.

Some of the criticism of Acheson is founded on the thought that he should have given deeper consideration to the effect of his statements on his official position. A strong argument can be made on that basis. But there also are reflections of a growing tendency to assume that anyone accused of a crime must be guilty. The friend who persists in his belief in the innocence and integrity of a convicted man may sometimes be more justified, in the end, than the accusers who condemned him.

BELIEVING WHAT YOU SAY

"I HAVE said it thrice. What I tell you three times is true." These lines are from "The Hunting of the Snark," the nonsense poem by Lewis Carroll, master of nonsense, whose supreme achievement was "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland." They state a widespread situation. Many a person says something which he does not believe. After constant repetition he becomes firmly impressed with its truth.

Something like this must explain the mental state of the Russian leaders. They have so long repeated the wildest charges against the United States that it is no wonder if by now they believe them themselves.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

This country, more than any other on earth, has, from its very inception, been faced by the necessity of providing a way of life which would make it possible for peoples of varying racial strains and religious concepts to live together in peace, forbearance and amity.

This problem faced George Washington as it faces us. We are today composed of some 50 races of man and of more than 250 religious sects, and we manage surprisingly well. We do not suppress men because of their origins or beliefs; we do not repress differences.

Admittedly, most men believe that theirs is the best origin and the best way of life, and they sometimes look down their noses at those whose antecedents and ways of life are different. But in the sum total of American life, and with rare exceptions, this hurts nobody. Our diversities strengthen rather than weaken us.

Washington, in 1775, was faced by as difficult a situation as ever a man knew. He led a rebel army. If the revolution failed, the rebels would be traitors; if success met his arms, he would establish a new nation. He was fighting a mighty power; yet was uncertain of the support of his own people. He had called for volunteers to march into Canada and 1,100 men were encamped on Cambridge Common under Colonel Benedict Arnold, whom Washington then trusted.

On Sept. 14, 1775, Washington wrote to Arnold, giving him his orders which were enclosed in a covering letter that contained one of the most notable paragraphs in the traditional philosophy of the American people. The wisdom and humanity of Washington's instructions, while pointed to the Canadian expedition, can serve us well in this era of confusion. He wrote as follows:

"Should any American soldier be so base and infamous as to injure any Canadian or Indian, in his person or property, I do most earnestly enjoin you to bring him to such severe and exemplary punishment as the enormity of the crime may require. Should it extend to death itself it will not be disproportional to its guilt at such a time and in such a cause; but I hope and trust, that the grave men who have voluntarily engaged in this expedition, will be governed by far different views. That order, discipline and regularity of behaviour will be as conspicuous, as their courage and valour.

"I also give it in charge to you to avoid all disrespect to or contempt of the religion of the country and its ceremonies. Prudence, policy, and a true Christian spirit, will lead us to look with compassion upon their errors without insulting them. While we are contending for our own liberty, we should be very cautious of violating the rights of conscience in others, ever considering that God alone is the judge of the hearts of men, and to Him only in this case, they are answerable."

Mental Illness Still Major Problem to Modern Doctors

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THOUGH our knowledge of mental illness has advanced greatly during recent years, it is still one of the greatest problems facing modern medicine.

Shock treatment has, it is true, brought improvement to many who suffer from mental disorders but not all patients respond to this method.

Recently, a brain operation, known as topectomy, has been used in cases where shock treatment failed. Schizophrenia is perhaps the most frequent of all mental disorders. In these cases, best results from the operation are to be expected in patients who still show evidence of drive and whose normal emotional pattern has not been obliterated by the disease. In other words, people who still enjoy periods of normal mental well-being benefit most from topectomy. Those over 45 get no improvement, especially where the symptoms have been present for a long time; hence, it is not performed in the older group of patients.

Further Improvement

The operation has also been employed in other types of mental disturbance, such as depression. Poor results have been obtained in the treatment of Parkinson's disease or paralysis agitans.

After operation, there seems to be an immediate improvement if the eventual outcome is a successful one. For about 24 hours after operation, the mental disturbance may seem to be worse, but about 4 or 5 days later, improvement is noted in the favorable cases. The patient tires easily, but this symptom gradually disappears. Technical abilities are not affected by the operation, so that, for example, musicians and painters are able to resume their work within several weeks after the operation. Lack of bowel and bladder control may occur for a period up to 30 days, but this is only temporary.

In 54 patients in whom the operation has been performed in the past two years, none succumbed. Good results were obtained in one-fifth of the patients with schizophrenia, and another one-fifth were so improved that they can remain at home doing housework but cannot earn their living.

When improvement occurs, it usually takes place within three months. Only two of the patients seem to have been made worse by the operation.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

"EVERY bit of this is a pack of nonsense," said Mark Dustin wearily. "I would trust Ceil with every dime I've got... any time and anywhere."

"We've had plenty of cases where wealthy men trusted their wives and..." Painter remarked.

Dustin let out a snarl of rage and painfully lifted himself to a sitting position, turned about, and slowly swung his legs from the bed. "I won't lie here and listen to such insults. None of this is helping find Celia. She may be in danger. We're wasting time here when we should be out searching for her."

"Take it easy." Shayne moved over, caught up his legs and put them back on the bed, then went to the door and called the doctor. He said, "Painter has done his worst, and your patient still survives. He brushed past the doctor and went across the room to the telephone, looked up a number, called it, and stood with the receiver to his ear while Painter and Jessup filed out of the sick room.

Painter came over and stood behind him and asked fretfully, "Who are you calling now?"

"Walter Voorland. But he doesn't answer." He cradled the receiver and looked up another number, called it, and waited until the phone rang three times before there was a click and Randolph's voice said, "Yes?"

Shayne hung up without answering. He said grimly, "If I were chief of detectives on Miami Beach I'd get every man on my force out to search for Mrs. Dustin."

"Whom did you call that last time," Painter demanded.

"Randolph, the insurance agent."

"Voorland and Randolph," Painter muttered. "What can they know about this?"

"That's what I'd like to find out." Shayne picked up his hat and started toward the door.

"Where are you going?" snapped Painter.

Shayne said, "Out," and kept on going.

* * *

Earl Randolph lived in a modern, four-story apartment building in Miami's northeast section. There was a small foyer with brass mailboxes indicating the names and apartment numbers of the occupants. Randolph's name was over 3-D. Shayne pushed the 4-A button and waited. When the electric latch on the inside door clicked, he entered, went down a narrow hallway to the self-service elevator and went up to the third floor.

He found apartment 3-D and pressed the button. Randolph opened the door. He wore a white shirt open at the neck, the sleeves rolled up above his elbows. He blinked at Shayne, and an expression of complete surprise came over his round face.

"Mike... I didn't expect you."

"I've been visiting a couple here in the building," he lied. "Thought I'd drop in to talk over the Dustin case. Mind if I come in?"

"Of course not." Randolph quickly regained his poise and stepped back. The detective removed his hat and hung it on a hatrack beside Randolph's wide-brimmed Panama.

The living room was filled with smoke, and a card table drawn up in front of the day bed was littered with papers and newspaper clippings from two cardboard files. The ashtray was piled high with cigarette butts, and an almost empty tall glass stood beside it.

Randolph said apologetically, "I'm afraid it's rather close in here. Got to working and forgot to open a window." He went across to open one, then asked, "Have a drink?"

"Not now. I had too much earlier this evening." He ruefully indicated the bruise on his jaw. "Cracked up my car and got this clip on the jaw." He moved to a deep chair and sank into it. "What have you been doing all evening?"

"Working." Randolph sat down behind the littered table. "I came straight home from the Sunlux and began going through my old files. I..." He paused, rubbing a blunt forefinger thoughtfully across his mustache. "I think I may have turned up something interesting, Mike."

Shayne said carelessly, "Tim Rourke said he'd been trying to get you all evening, but you didn't answer the phone."

"My phone has been acting up. Just a little while ago it rang and no one answered when I took up the receiver."

Shayne nodded and said, "Maybe that's the reason Tim couldn't get you. Do you mean you've turned up something on the ruby bracelet?"

"I don't know. There could be some connection. At least, there are some interesting angles." The insurance agent leaned back and carefully placed the tips of thick fingers together. "About star rubies in general... and Walter Voorland's connection with them in particular," he ended quietly.

"Are you working on it, Mike?"

"Not officially. But Painter accused me of planning the snatch. You heard what Dustin said in the hotel. I've a hunch I may be called in by him. I had another talk with him about half an hour ago."

Sweat glistened on Randolph's round face. He separated his fingertips and took out a handkerchief to wipe it away. "How is he feeling? Any serious complications?"

"They fixed him up at the hospital." Shayne lit a cigarette and broke the matchstick between his fingers and frowned at it. "Mrs. Dustin is a mighty pretty woman. Do you think either of them has a tie-in with the heist?"

Shayne dropped the broken matchstick in the ashtray and spread out his hands. "Painter and you agreed that the job must have been carefully planned. Someone must have tipped off the gang."

"I don't think I said that..." Randolph protested. "I said it had all the earmarks of a professional job. But it could easily have been as you suggested. If they had a lookout in the Sunlux lobby and he spotted Mrs. Dustin going out wearing the bracelet..." Again he let his words trail off speculatively.

"What angles have you dug up?"

Earl Randolph seemed eager to drop the other subject. He leaned forward and rustled the papers on the table. "A couple of other cases involving expensive star rubies, Mike. Both of them sold by Voorland and insured for large sums. Both stolen in hold-ups somewhat similar to the one tonight," and never recovered. The policies were paid in full in both cases."

"I thought you and Voorland both stated tonight that the star ruby cannot be cut up and resold ...and because of that fact, we would almost surely have an offer from the gang."

"Theoretically that's true, Mike. That's why I began to check my old records as soon as I came back from the hotel. I discovered a couple of very queer coincidences. Listen to this:

"October twelfth, nineteen forty-three," he continued, reading from a typewritten sheet. "Policy issued to James T. King at the Tropical Towers Aparement, Miami, Florida, for eighty thousand dollars on a perfect eight-and-one-half carat star ruby ring. Purchased from Voorland for one hundred grand. It was stolen less than a week after the policy was issued. Never recovered. We paid the policy in full in December."

"Wasn't that a lot of money for one ruby that size?"

"Not in nineteen forty-three. I appraised the stone myself and recommended the policy."

"Anything fishy about the loss?"

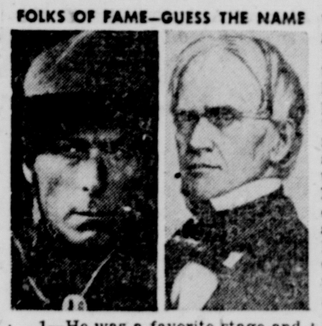
HANDICAP—(HAND-i-kap)—noun; a race or contest in which, in order to equalize chances of winning, an artificial disadvantage is imposed on a supposedly superior contestant, or an artificial advantage is given to one supposedly inferior; also the advantage given or the disadvantage imposed; figuratively, any disadvantage that renders success more difficult. Origin: From Hand-in-cap, in allusion to a certain old sport.

FOLKS OF FAME—GUESS THE NAME



1—He was a favorite stage and motion picture actor whom the fathers of the present youngest generation will remember well. He never seemed to get the girl in his pictures, but, after saving her from the ruffians, and reuniting the lovers, he left them in a clinch, and rode away over the sage brush on his trusty horse. He was born in Newburgh, N. Y., and made his stage debut at 19. He supported the famous actress, Helena Modjeska. He began his screen career in Blue Blazes Rawden, then followed The Tiger Man, Wagon Tracks, etc. Sand, The Cradle of Courage, O'Malley of the Mounted, The Three Word Brand, Travelin' On, and Wild Bill Hickok were others movies of his. He died in 1946. What was his name?

2—This American educator and statesman was born in Franklin, Mass., May 4, 1796. Until he was 15 he never attended school more than eight or ten weeks in a year. A good college preparatory teacher helped him, and in six months he fitted himself for admission to the sophomore class at Brown university, Providence, R. I. He graduated with highest honors in 1819. He took courses in law, tutored at Brown and acted as librarian. Taking an interest in public affairs, he was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1827. Educational standards being unsatisfactory, he undertook their reform first in Massachusetts. He studied methods abroad, and on his return was assailed for his progressive views. He was elected to United States Congress. In 1853 he assumed the presidency of a new college in southern Ohio which was to be non-sectarian and open on equal terms to both sexes. He died at Yellow Springs, O., Aug. 2, 1859. Who was he?

CIO Chiefs Absent From Gompers Anniversary Dinner | Lewis Also Among Missing At Strictly AFL Gathering

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The division in the "House of Labor" was never more clearly illustrated than at the recent AFL memorial dinner on the 100th anniversary of the birth of the late Samuel Gompers.

No CIO officials, many of whom cut their labor teeth in the Federation's ranks years ago, were present to join in the tribute to the first president of the AFL. More significant, neither was John L. Lewis.

Samuel Gompers

The occasion was strictly an AFL show and none of the other union leaders were considered in sufficiently good standing to allow their attendance. Labor observers especially noted Lewis' absence. The United Mine Workers president was as close to Gompers as any one in the labor movement.

Yet Lewis, currently out of the AFL and feuding with its official hierarchy, was missing from the dinner tendered to his onetime benefactor and counselor.

● BUDGET CUTS—Both Republicans and Democrats on Capitol Hill are talking budget cutting and deficit reduction. But the real test will come when they vote on appropriations for the 1951 fiscal year.

Informed forecasts are that, when the figures are added up, the dent they will make in the budget will be comparatively small—not more than one or two billion dollars at the most.

Probably the main reason for this is that 1950 is an election year. Neither side will alienate large sections of the west by voting against big flood control, reclamation and power projects. There will be a tendency to go slow in slashing foreign aid because it would mean reducing American farmers' markets.

This is the old story. It will not be changed until public sentiment against deficit financing reaches such a stage as to outweigh the group pressures that force through huge spending programs.

The chief executive has decided to postpone action until the final days of this session of Congress—then push it through. He reportedly believes that this will be a sure-fire way to get acceptance for at least one more year.

● DIPLOMATIC PROBE—Look for a congressional investigation of the State department in connection with charges that United States policy toward China has been influenced by a "left-wing group."

The department has been under increasing fire from GOP members of Congress and some of the Republican legislators have made it clear that they will push for a full airing of the charges.

Names likely to pop up at any future hearings are those of W. Walton Butterworth, John S. Service and John Carter Vincent—department officials who have been criticized by GOP congressmen.

Chief Against Farm Bureau Brannan Plan

According to numerous reports, Kline had been slated for the post if Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had been elected president. The subject came up again at a recent news conference. He remarked that he was a Republican who had voted for Al Smith in 1928 and Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1940, and added that there was nothing personal in his reported row over the Brannan Plan.

He said he had visited the Dewey camp only once to discuss farm problems and the cabinet post was not mentioned. He wound up by saying that he did "absolutely nothing" for Dewey and someone added, "Neither did anybody else." Kline joined heartily in the laughter.

Woman Says All Fashions Made To Attract The Men

PARIS, Feb. 23—"The dominating motive of fashion is sex, for by changing the styles of their clothes, women attract men."

That is the opinion of—of all people—a woman. She is Dr. Gertrude Drah, one of Europe's leading psychoanalysts who has just taken a professional look-see at the 1950 Paris fashion shows.

Dr. Drah's statement follows:

She says there are many reasons why women choose their clothes, but they all boil down, she says, to one aim: To attract men!

"The fashion pendulum rocks back and forth from year to year but only because women demand a "new look" in their fight for the male.

"The 1950 styles, reminiscent of the 1920s, will appeal to men and women for different reasons.

"The lowered waistlines, blousing bodices and short-cut hair will remind some elderly women of their girlhood, of romantic and sentimental experiences when they were young. They will be transported back to the time of carefree youth—and for some this will be a means of escapism.

"Men now between 25 and 30 will be influenced very strongly by the new fashion trend that recalls the 1920s. They obtained their first impression of women from their mothers, who in the '20s wore short skirts, lower waistlines and whose arms often were bare.

"These young men are likely to react favorably to the new styles of short skirts and bloused tops. The oedipus complex present in their sub-concscious will attract them toward women dressed that way.

"Women today seem to demand an escape from reality. Frightened by an insecure, threatening future in the atomic age, they dream of romantic foreign countries, exotic climates, luscious lounging in tropical lands.

"The dress called Baleares in Maggy Rouff's collection is one for these escapists who dream of avoiding an average life and whose minds refuse to face reality. Baleares is an evening dress with a white cotton bodice and short purple and green printed skirt. The demure top satisfies the weak will—for the woman only dreams of this different life. But the exotic colors of the skirt provide escape.

"For the egoistic type of woman who wants to accentuate her personality with aggressive colors and striking forms—to eliminate other women—there is a dress called Sirocco. It is orange in color and can be seen from afar, and the shade contrasts strongly with a black plumed hat.

"Sirocco is indeed a dress to overwhelm other women — but Maggy Rouff's gown Chanoinesse, on the other hand, is designed to overwhelm men!

LOSES 27 LBS. TOLEDO LADY PRAISES RENNEL

"I can truly say I wouldn't be without Rennel," writes Mrs. B. M. Harmsen, 2644 Oak Grove Pl., Toledo 12, Ohio. "Since taking Rennel I have lost 27 lbs., and feel better in every way. I did weigh 157 lbs., but now at 130 lbs. I feel in trim at 59 years of age."

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender more youthful curves—if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Insist on genuine Rennel.

1949 Fire Cost In Ohio Shows Drop

Chief Wise Notes Marshal's Report

Fire losses throughout Ohio in 1949 were considerably less than in 1948, according to Circleville Fire Chief Talmer Wise.

The Circleville fire chief said that a report made by Harry J. Callan, state fire marshal, this week shows that in 1948, there were 22,000 fires reported with a loss of $25,480,564.

It was the largest loss in the 50-year history of the state office.

In 1949, the state suffered 19,271 fires with a reduction of 11.2 percent and a monetary loss of $20,835,652 with a reduction of 18.2 percent. The estimate of fire losses in the nation was $670 million, a six percent decrease.

The greatest contributing cause of fires and fire losses continues to be faulty electrical wiring.

* * *

THE CARELESS use of matches and smoking is second in the number of fires and third in line in property loss. Faulty stoves, boilers, pipes, etc., are third in line in the number of fires and second in property loss.

Some 38 percent of all fires and 20.3 percent of all losses occur in dwellings.

"This should certainly demonstrate the fact that fire safety should begin at home," Wise declared, adding, "Twenty-one million dollars is still a lot of money to go up in smoke.

Callan's report concluded:

"I am giving a lot of credit to the untiring efforts of public spirited citizens in fire prevention work, as well as the work of the paid and volunteer fire departments throughout the state. With their continued vigilance, we hope to further reduce Ohio's fire losses and make the Golden Anniversary of the state fire marshal's office something to be remembered."

Banker Says Long-Term Credit To Hurt U.S.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—A Wisconsin banker has warned that millions of persons "are being taken out of the market for a long time to come" because of 80 to 100 percent real estate mortgages, improvement loans, two-year loans on automobiles and other purchase debts.

The warning came from Kenneth K. Duvall, president of the First National Bank of Appleton, Wis., at the mid-Winter meeting of the Ohio Bankers Association. He said:

"If the economy runs onto the shoals of depression because of presently unwise credit and debt, it will most likely be due to the financial indigestion of the individual consumer.

"Such a course does not necessarily point to excessive bad debt losses by those who extend credit. But it does point to one thing our nation cannot very well face—a serious downward spiralling of the economy and the inevitable intervention by a government already in debt over $260 billion and unable to bring its own accounts into balance at the peak of prosperity.

"If the use of credit by individuals has any prudent upper limit, it has already gone some distance toward reaching it with real estate loans and consumer credit now at an all-time high."

Flashlight SOS Saves Couple

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Two men had a flashlight and a working knowledge of the Morse code slept in their own beds today, rather than on a small Potomac river pier, with the temperature around 14 above.

The men, who departed before they were identified, were left on the pier off National Airport to work on a lighting system. Apparently they were forgotten, and they remained on the pier until their pleas for help—"SOS" in Morse with a flashlight—were noticed by men in the airport control tower. A crash boat was sent to the rescue.

Father's Slaying Is Exposed By Bone Discovery

PONTIAC, Mich., Feb. 23—Human bones recovered from a shallow barnyard grave in Clawson, Mich., have been identified as the remains of a 52-year-old auto worker whose slaying two years ago was kept secret by his family.

The identification climaxed the story of one of the dead man's daughters who said he was fatally shot by a son, his body buried behind a cowshed by four of her brothers, and the family sworn to secrecy.

According to the story, the family told neighbors the father had become ill and had been "sent away."

Oakland County authorities sent out an alarm for 28-year-old Marine Sgt. Carson James whose sister, Mrs. Muriel Hockersmith, 26, of Washington, said he killed their father, Stanley, on Thanksgiving Day, 1947, after an argument.

The Marine was reported motoring cross-country from Silver Springs, Md., to a new assignment at the Naval Ordnance Test Station at China Lake, Cal. He was due to report at his new post March 1.

The story told by Mrs. Hockersmith, wife of a painter, was corroborated, authorities said, by the man's widow, Mrs. Ruth James, and two other children—Hugh, 18, and Mrs. Laurene Martin, 23, of Chelsea, Mich. Hugh was held in Oakland County jail as a material witness.

Diphtheria In Calves Is Possible

Best Gives Tips On Proper Care

If calves show little interest in eating, and merely stand around smacking their lips and drooling, it may be a warning sign to their owners, Larry Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent warned this week.

"These are sometimes telltale signs of calf diphtheria," the farm authority said. "Calves confined during long Winter months are more prone to this disease than at any other time.

"If calves exhibit this behavior, the inside of their mouths should be checked for spots of dead tissue which may appear on the inner surfaces of the cheeks, around the gums, or on the tongue.

"Sometimes in cases of calf diphtheria the side of the face may be swollen. The young animals' throats generally become so sore that they are unable to swallow and they lose weight rapidly. Death losses are high."

* * *

TO PREVENT outbreaks, the agent recommended avoidance of overcrowding and also urged that calf quarters be kept clean. At the first sign of an outbreak, the sick calves should be isolated from the others. Buckets and other feeding equipment used for feeding infected animals should be sterilized before other animals are fed from them. Best added:

"Many diphtheria calves can be saved by the veterinarian if treatment is begun at first signs of an outbreak."

Per Capita Farm Income In 1949 Set At $763

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—The Agriculture Department reported that the total net income of farm folk averaged $763 per person in 1949.

The average per person income received last year was 16 percent below the 1948 figure. But while the average farm person took a 16 percent cut, the average for non-farm workers was $1,555, only one percent less than last year.

Per capita income of persons on farms in 1949 dropped for the first time since 1938, the department said.

In 1946 and 1947 the per capita income of farm people averaged about 60 percent as large as the average for non-farmers. This difference widened to 58 percent in 1948 and 49 last year.

The department listed the total national income last year at $208 billion. Of that, farmers got about $21 billion from all sources and non-farmers received $187 billion.

Mother's Bone To Give Lad Use Of Ailing Arm

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23 — Little four-year-old Jimmy Skidmore of Evergreen will romp and play again with his two brothers.

His pretty mother, 27-year-old Mary Skidmore gave part of her pelvic bone for an operation which will give Jimmy normal use of his left arm.

Both are recovering satisfactorily in a Columbus hospital. They underwent surgery Monday to have a portion of Mrs. Skidmore's pelvic bone transplanted to Jimmy's arm.

In the operation, the cyst was removed and the hollow was filled with a three-inch segment of bone from Mrs. Skidmore.

Jimmy's father, Warren E. Skidmore, an equipment salesman, and his brothers, Larry, 7, and Ronnie, 6, are staying with an aunt until the hospitalized pair recover.

Judge And Press Give Assistance

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Opal Marie Beverly, 23, may arrive home in Williamson, W. Va., broke, but she will get there—through the courtesy of Washington's Judge Frank H. Myers and the press.

Miss Beverly appeared in Myers' "drunk court," where she admitted she had spent her last cent on drinks. She added that she had bought a through ticket from New York, where she had been working, to her home in Williamson.

The judge fined her one dollar, and then reached under the judicial robes and pulled out a dollar bill to pay the fine. A reporter paid her cab fare to Union Station.

One-Eyed Goat May Wink Soon

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—Thousands of gallons of bock beer, the seasonal amber fluid that goes on sale March 17, is brewing in Ohio.

The traditional Spring beverage-tonic is aged from five to seven weeks before the annual St. Patrick's Day sale.

It's the day you wink at the one-eyed goat—and, if he winks back, you've had enough—so the saying goes.

Bock is a special thick brew made in the usual manner but with black malt and other ingredients added.

Lustron Says Profit To Show

Prefab Company Business 'Booms'

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—An official spokesman for the Lustron Corp. said that the prefab housing firm expected to turn a profit in the third quarter of the year if allowed to continue operations.

The spokesman said the foreclosure action taken by the Reconstruction Finance Corp. against the company had not altered management's belief that a profit level was not far in the future. The statement continued:

"Lustron is still a going concern, and given a reasonable hand and free operation we will begin to show a cash return on the taxpayer's dollar very shortly.

"Certainly this is not the time to halt Lustron, just at the beginning of the building season."

Government action to recover RFC loans to the Columbus housing concern has, according to company officials, sent business soaring.

The spokesmen said Lustron still expected to sell 4,500 homes through dealers and an additional 4,000 to project builders. He pointed out that 8,000 homes yearly was considered the "break-even point" and that sales might top estimates by as much as 50 percent.

* * *

LUSTRON'S spokesman said full, detailed plans had been submitted to the RFC, outlining a program for dealer expansion and the requirements for housing project sales.

RFC decided to foreclose its mortgage with Lustron President Carl Strandlund because he has been unable to meet payments on a series of loans granted by the agency.

Strandlund has obtained $37.5 million from the RFC. For the last several months he has been trying to work out a solution to the financing problem without success.

The spokesman said that "he has offered us suggestions which invariably involve new money and we have decided against any further loans."

If the RFC wins its foreclosure action, the official said "we may try to lease out the plant." He added:

22 OSU Pledges 'Kidnap' Chief

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23 — Twenty-two Phi Gamma Delta fraternity pledges at Ohio State university may rue the day they "kidnapped" their pledge master, Philip Alexander of Bay Village.

Alexander didn't say it exactly like that, but when he got back to Columbus yesterday, he vowed not to forget.

The university junior had hitch-hiked from Ottawa Lake, Mich., to Toledo yesterday, borrowed money from friends and returned to Columbus by bus. The pledges still have three weeks under Alexander's jurisdiction.

Lake Home Burns

BUCKEYE LAKE, Feb. 23—An overheated fireplace was blamed today for a $1,500 fire which swept the home of Philip Parkaus, a federal weather observer who lives near Buckeye Lake.

CHARGED with participating in a six-hour crime spree, Barbara Jean Carroll (above), 23, of Houston, Tex., is shown after being arrested with Andrew C. MacCauley Jr., in Golden, Colo. The pair, armed with two machine guns, allegedly stole three cars, kidnaped two of the drivers and, for a time, halted pursuers with gunfire. (International)

RAF Officer Says Reds Lack Big Bombers

LONDON, Feb. 23—A Royal Air Force officer, who served as a wartime British air intelligence agent, declared today that Soviet Russia and her satellites are producing between 40,000 and 50,000 planes a year.

The officer, Wing Commander Asher Lee, said:

"In the realm of tactical air warfare, she (Russia) probably is at least as strong as any other air force or group of air forces in the world."

He added, however, that Russia has no long-range bomber to match America's B-36.

"Even more important," Lee said, "is the fact that, at the moment, the Soviet air force has no long-range bomber which will carry the atomic bomb more than 1,000 miles from its base.

"That is the maximum operational radius of action of the TU70, the longest range bomber aircraft in the Soviet air force." (The TU70 is comparable to the American B-29 Superfortress.)

Lee expressed the opinion that the Soviet air force could not, at this time, attempt to bomb any such distant targets as Washington or New York unless it could acquire intermediate bases such as Greenland.

Wild Gunman Kills 3, Wounds 23 Neighbors

ANCONA, Italy, Feb. 23—The nearby town of Filottrano was turned into a battleground yesterday by a 23-year-old Italian peasant who killed his fiancee and two would-be captors, and wounded 23 other persons in a maniacal outbreak.

Cetullio Lillini shot his fiancee to death for unexplained reasons and then rushed into the street, firing wildly.

Two neighbors in the town of 10 thousand persons who tried to halt him were killed.

Throughout the early morning hours Lillini roamed the streets, shooting everyone in sight. He gravely wounded three militiamen who tried to arrest him.

During his wanderings, Lillini pinned the following notice on a wall:

"I am forced to do this. I am sorry if the innocent suffer, but I cannot help it."

Townfolk barricaded themselves in their houses and truckloads of steel-helmeted police poured in from all sides to hunt out the maniac, who was believed to have taken refuge in pine woods on the outskirts.

Lillini's reign of terror lasted for five hours before he fled.

Harriman Says End Of ERP To Hurt Europe

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 — W. Averell Harriman, U. S. roving ambassador has warned that elimination of the Marshall Plan now would throw millions out of work and start Europe down the road to Communism.

Harriman told the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday that if American financial aid were terminated during the middle of the European cooperation program, "the European countries would simply have to slash drastically their imports from us." He declared:

"They would have to eliminate imports of capital equipment, without which they cannot achieve self support. They would have to cut down imports of industrial raw materials, throwing millions out of work.

"Cuts in food and feed imports would at once reduce living standards and farm output. With production down, exports would dwindle and imports would have to be still further cut. The fateful downward spiral would be started. Europe would again be faced with the hunger, chaos and despair in which Communism breeds."

Political 'Blood Bank' Is Lashed

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—A Cincinnati Democrat charged today that State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson is being backed in his campaign for the U. S. Senate by "a powerful undercover coalition of big-money Democrats and Republican financial forces."

Walter A. Kelley, also a primary candidate for the senatorial nomination, said:

"This unnatural political blood bank was founded to bring about the defeat of both Governor Lausche, a Democrat, and Senator Taft, a Republican."

JESSUP REPORT AWAITED

Policy-Makers Face New Decisions In Cold War

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 — American policy-makers soon will face another vital decision in the Cold War struggle with Russia.

This has no direct connection with the A-bomb and H-bomb control controversy — about which the Russian people have not been told anyway by their government.

It is a decision concerning the Far East, where Russia has the initiative through the Chinese Communist victory and the new Moscow-Peiping 30-year military and political alliance.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup, roving American ambassador, is returning home from his Far-East tour. He will make his report and then it is up to the State Department.

Russia's recognition of the Ho Chi-minh rebel faction in French Indo-China was one of the most dangerous developments in the East-West struggle since the Berlin blockade.

Amid the present controversy about atomic control, pegged on the idea Russia might make a peaceful concession, foreign observers point out that American diplomacy already had given Russia a chance to let the Cold War cool off.

* * *

THIS WAS WHEN Secretary of State Acheson declared a "hands off" policy toward Formosa, China, and the Southeastern Asian nations.

If the Russians wanted to relax the situation they never would have abruptly recognized the Ho regime in Indo-China.

The Russians increased the pressure by recognizing Ho, the slippery Moscow-trained rebel leader who has been fighting the French ever since Japan surrendered.

The implication is that soon arms and other aid will be flowing to Ho's guerrilla army through Communist China.

The Russian recognition did not give American policy-makers an opportunity to drop the East-West contest broken off when Chinese Nationalist Leader Chiang Kai-shek was left out on a limb, Formosa, after the Communist mainland victory.

The Kremlin forced an increased struggle on a battlefield which Washington wanted to neutralize, and it led to Anglo-American recognition of the French-backed Bao Dai government.

The American government, after studying Jessup's report, must decide whether to limit its aid to Southeast Asia or to give it heavy support, including arms.

New Orleans Serious After Mardi Gras End

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 23—Residents of New Orleans went to church yesterday under dreary, dripping skies to usher in the holy season of Lent.

The weather, like the city itself, changed abruptly as the gay, make-believe rule of Mardi Gras monarchs came to an end.

Shrove Tuesday was bright and sunny, with temperatures in tune with the people celebrating the annual carnival. Comus, god of mirth, finished his march through the city streets to cheering throngs.

The sombre skies yesterday set the scene for a return to serious thinking, to the period of prayer and fasting before the advent of Easter.

The Mardi Gras celebration was one of the biggest ever. Enjoying a full share of the spotlight were the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. They entered into the spirit of carnival completely.

The duchess clapped gleefully as the rolling throne of Rex came into view and the duke smiled when a clown kissed him and snapped a balloon on the side of his royal head.

The duke bowed from the waist and the duchess curtsied before the thrones of the make-believe monarchs, Rex and Comus, as elaborate balls brought the famous Mardi Gras season to an end.

Fire Hits Plant

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 23—The explosion of a steam boiler in Fercliff Cleaners plant here was blamed today for a $2,000 fire which swept the building yesterday.

A fish has few nerves around the mouth and consequently does not feel much pain when hooked.

Brooklyn Fox Is Lassoed By Gotham Cop

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—Ronald Schiffrin, a hardy indoorsman of the upper reaches of the Bronx, entered the lobby of his apartment house, stared aghast, and cried:

"Yoicks!"

Huddled against a wall warmed by a steam pipe, a red fox snarled, "yoicks yourself," thereby betraying his Brooklyn origin.

Outside the temperature was at sixes and sevens—degrees that is—but outside dashed the revived Reynard. Tracking him on the cold concrete clumped the finest of New York's fox hunters—in unfashionable blue coats—and the first horseless hunt of the Bronx social season was on.

But briefly. For city-spoiled foxes lost their foxiness and soon become candidates for the worktables of their remote cousin, I. J.

This one leaped to a wall—and promptly fell down. He was quickly lassoed by Patrolman Leo Maurer, the Gene Autrey of the New York police.

Weather Saves Man's Wallet

A gunman entered a car owned by Kenneth Barren today and ordered him to start driving, but Barren pointed out that his windshield was covered with ice. The understanding intruder agreed to let Barren scrape some of it off.

While doing so Barren noticed that the armed thief could not see out, so he took off and called the police. When he returned the gunman and the car were gone, but Barren still had his wallet.

Hunters Turn Into Firemen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Pink hunting coats turned into red firemen's shirts for 15 fox hunters, when a Maryland barn caught fire.

Inside the coats (or shirts) were 15 members of the Potomac Hunt Club who abandoned their annual Washington's Birthday fox hunt to lead four thoroughbred horses and six prize cattle from the burning barn of Farmer William C. Hanson.

The hunters were riding by when they noticed the flames. Damage to the barn was estimated at $10,000. The fox got away.

4 Nations To Merge Naval Power

Yanks To Assist In Mock Warfare

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 — The Navy has announced that U. S., British, Canadian and Dutch warships will stage a four-nation display of Atlantic Treaty sea power in Caribbean maneuvers during mid-March.

The exercises, first of the kind ever scheduled, will involve the Battleship Missouri, four U. S. and two foreign aircraft carriers, airships, fighter and bomber squadrons and more than 60 cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

It was understood that the maneuvers, described as "anti-submarine and air defense exercises," were arranged through the Atlantic treaty military committee established last November.

Canada is sending the Carrier Magnificent and the Destroyer Micmac. Britain will contribute the Cruiser Glascow and the Sloops Snipe and Sparrow. The Netherlands is sending the Carrier Karel Doorman and a cruiser and a sloop.

* * *

THE FOUR-nation display will follow U. S. solo maneuvers scheduled to involve 143 ships and 80,000 men in a mock assault on the island of Vieques, near San Juan, Puerto Rico, March 7-8.

Joint maneuvers of the U. S. and British Asiatic fleets are to be held in Philippine waters March 3-10.

A Navy spokesman said the U. S. will use the 45,000-ton Carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt, the 27,000-ton Carrier Philippine Sea and the small carriers Palau and Mindoro in the international exercises.

A U. S. fleet will maneuver with and against a British-Canadian fleet all the way from west of Martinique to Charleston, S. C.

Planes of the two fleets will be scored for "strikes" on each other. Eleven U. S. submarines will join the British-Canadian forces in an attempt to stop an advancing American unit led by the Philippine Sea.

The maneuvers with the Dutch ships will be conducted separately in the Guantanamo Bay area of Cuba. The Dutch vessels are already on a training cruise taking them to Cuban waters.

Lamb Declares Rhodes Seeking Only 'Publicity'

Lamb launched an attack on U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft. Speaking on his television station in Columbus, Lamb, a once-considered Democrat candidate for the U. S. Senate, declared:

"Sen. Taft is becoming itchy. He has to live with the Taft-Hartley Act and he has to face farmers who remember his words about removing price supports. He has to face housewives who remember his antics in seeking to remove OPA ceilings.

"His charge that I, many, many years ago, belonged to many civil liberties organizations will not answer the questions."

Of Rhodes' charge that Lamb is "spearheading the democratic campaign in Ohio to defeat Sen. Taft, Lamb said the Republican gubernatorial candidate is making "a desperate bid for some publicity in hanging on the coattails of Sen. Taft."

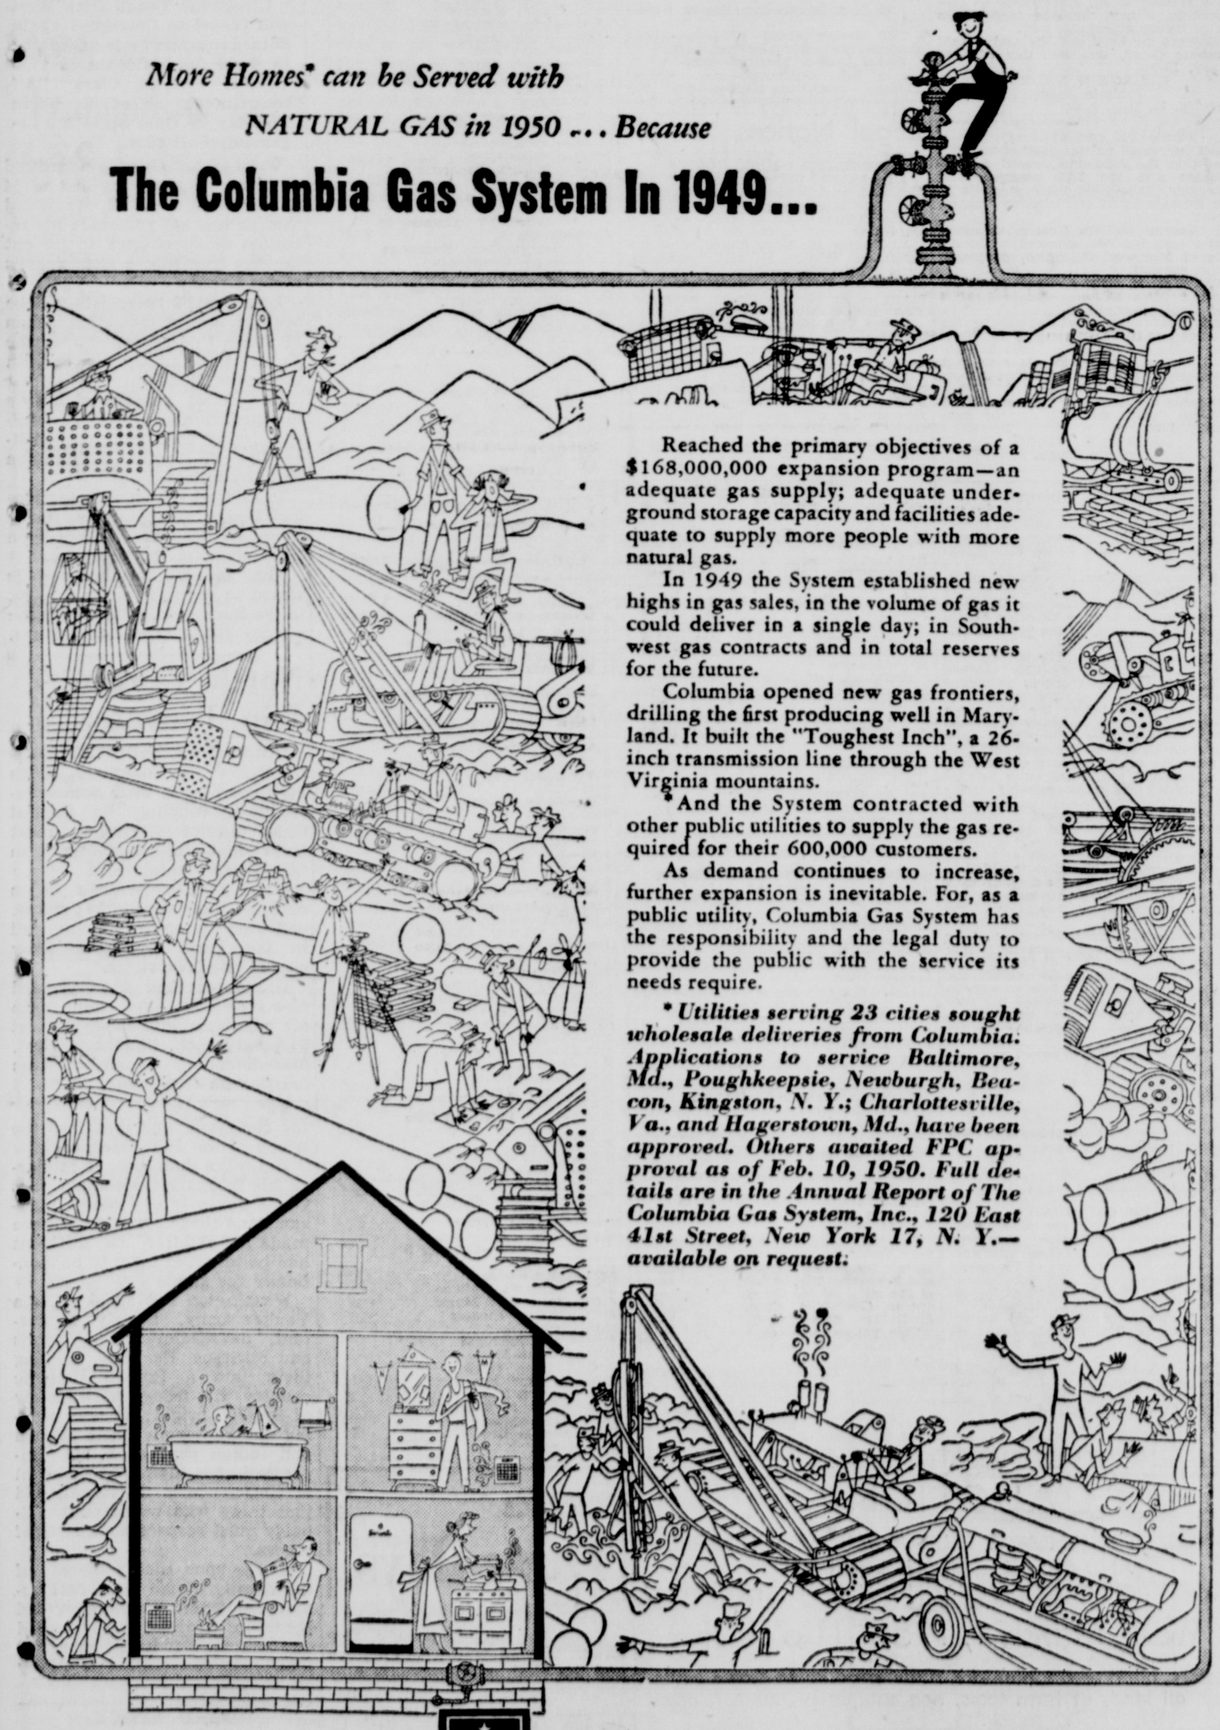
NATURAL GAS in 1950 ... Because

The Columbia Gas System In 1949...



Reached the primary objectives of a $168,000,000 expansion program—an adequate gas supply; adequate underground storage capacity and facilities adequate to supply more people with more natural gas.

In 1949 the System established new highs in gas sales, in the volume of gas it could deliver in a single day; in Southwest gas contracts and in total reserves for the future.

Columbia opened new gas frontiers, drilling the first producing well in Maryland. It built the "Toughest Inch", a 26-inch transmission line through the West Virginia mountains.

And the System contracted with other public utilities to supply the gas required for their 600,000 customers.

As demand continues to increase, further expansion is inevitable. For, as a public utility, Columbia Gas System has the responsibility and the legal duty to provide the public with the service its needs require.

 Utilities serving 23 cities sought wholesale deliveries from Columbia. Applications to service Baltimore, Md., Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Beacon, Kingston, N. Y.; Charlottesville, Va., and Hagerstown, Md., have been approved. Others awaited FPC approval as of Feb. 10, 1950. Full details are in the Annual Report of The Columbia Gas System, Inc., 120 East 41st Street, New York 17, N. Y.—available on request.*

Tigers Hope End Season With Win

University Quint Is Friday Foe

Circleville's championship Tiger basketball team will wind up its 1950 basketball schedule Friday when it travels to the home of the University Bucks in Columbus.

The Tigers this year have completed the most successful season of basketball ever turned in by a Circleville club since it became a member team of the South Central Ohio League.

Circleville has won its first SCOL championship with a record of seven wins in eight starts, while it will be looking for its 15th win in 18 starts for the season during its Friday road trip.

The Tigers are highly favored to close out their 1950 record during the invasion of the Bucks. The Bucks fell to an ignominious 50-22 defeat earlier this season in Pickaway Coliseum.

• • •

FIVE TIGERS will play their last regular season game for CHS in the Friday clincher.

Big Jim Starkey, Don Cook, Abe Rihl, Sandy Hill and Ted Sims will close out their playing careers during the tussle. Starkey, Cook, Hill and Rihl are scheduled to be graduated this Spring, while Sims will be over the age limit come next basketball season.

All of the lads will have a chance to play at least one extra game, however, when the CHS'ers play in the district tournament.

Probable starters for the Tigers in the encounter with the Bucks will be John Valentine and Starkey at forwards, Cook at center and Hill and Rihl at guards.

Circleville Coach Dick West will travel to Columbus again Saturday when he is scheduled to draw for his team in the Central district Class "A" tournament, slated to begin Tuesday in Ohio State Fairgrounds Coliseum.

West said that he is permitted to enter an eligibility list of 14 players and dress 12. He added that he has not yet made his selection of substitutes to fill out the list from Steve Brudzinski's reserve team.

Brudzinski's reservists will be seeking to post their 13th win in 18 starts this season during the Friday preliminary match with the junior Bucks.

The local reservists have dropped five contests this season, losing to Grandview, Westerville, Chillicothe, Wilmington and Greenfield.

The reserve preliminary is slated to begin at about 7 p. m. in the Buck gym, followed by the varsity tilt at about 8:15 p. m.

North Tankers Win Tourney

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—The Polar Bears of Columbus North high lived up to their name yesterday by copping the Central Ohio district swimming meet from eight other competitors in Ohio State's natatorium.

Coach Vince Ardito's boys churned their way to 39 points, collected mainly by placing well in the lower brackets. They scored only two firsts.

Grandview took the 200-yard free style relay final event to tie for runnerup with Zanesville at 35 points each. Columbus West, the defending champion, was fourth with 25 points.

Sokolsky's

From the very beginning, this nation viewed war with sadness and the victims of war with pity and compassion. While Washington had to go into Canada, he did not regard those people as enemies, to be despoiled, any more than we today hate the Japanese or the Germans. Surely, he would have approved of the wonderful work of Gen. Douglas MacArthur who came the conqueror and remained the friend of the Japanese people.

But more than that, he implored his troops to remember that God's house is of many mansions and that he would not have made his children so different had he intended them to be identically the same.

Washington was speaking to a Yankee army, largely Protestant, descendants of Pilgrims and Puritans. He was sending them into a Roman Catholic country. His troops were mostly of English origin; he was serving them among a mixed French and Indian population. He impressed upon them that the right of conscience is individual, and that those who would enjoy liberty must respect the liberty of others.

It was upon such a theme of the dignity of the individual human being that Washington led his troops to victory and founded our nation. We have inherited that tradition from his day. May we cherish it forever.

New Holland, Darby Due For Bid To District Test

Pickaway County basketball fans relaxed Thursday as the smoke cleared from the final eliminations in this year's Pickaway County basketball tournament and braced themselves for the climactic championship battle to be staged in Pickaway Coliseum Friday night.

New Holland Bulldogs and Darby Trojans basketball teams earned the right to meet each other Friday for consolation honors during the Wednesday final eliminations. One of them will go to the district tourney along with Ashville and Walnut, finalists in the winners' bracket.

The Bulldog aggregation advanced into the finals of the losers' bracket when it scored a one-sided 42-24 victory over Jackson Wildcats Wednesday.

Darby registered exactly the same margin of victory over Atlanta later with a 59-41 score.

The contest most awaited is the match between Ashville Bronco basketeers and the Walnut Tigers in the championship encounter.

Ashville ranked as co-champions of the 1950 Pickaway County Basketball League with a record of nine wins in 10 starts, tied for top honors with the Jackson Cats.

• • •

THE CATS, however, have muffed two chances to advance in the county playoffs, finally dropping out of the tourney Wednesday with its loss to New Holland.

Walnut, on the other hand, has fought an uphill battle from its final fourth place standings in the league. The Tigers scored only seven wins in 10 starts during the regular season.

Both teams will be meeting under exactly the same conditions as they did in last year's tournament championship finals, but for one difference—last year Walnut was co-champion during the regular league season.

The Tigers bested Ashville in last year's playoffs to earn the Walnut school its first tournament championship in its history.

All five of the regular starting Walnut players will be playing in their last county tournament game during the Friday fracas. All five starters—Junior Martin, Jack Hardwick, Bill Weaver, Boyd Spangler and Charles Eccard—are slated to receive their diplomas this Spring.

Ashville, on the other hand, will lose only one of its regulars this year, although four of its substitutes will be graduated. The senior starter is Herb Pettibond while the senior subs are David Kraft, Ernie Stevens, Dana Borrer and Charles Harris.

New Holland opened its contest by dealing a lightning jab into the Jackson defensive in the first four minutes of the game when it paced the Cats by an 8-0 margin. Jackson returned to the ball game during the remaining four minutes of the first frame to whittle down the Bulldog lead to 12-7 to end the initial period.

• • •

JACKSON WAS unable to stop the New Holland steam roller, as the Bulldogs racked up scores of 21-12 at the half and 34-15 at the end of the third stanza before winding up the match with the 42-24 final.

Chunky Joe Gooley was high scorer for the winning Bulldog quint with a total of 14 points. Jackson's Ray Hulse paced the Cats with a total of nine points.

The Cats were unable to hit the hoop during the first three periods of the match—as one fan put it, "unable to buy a bucket." Jackson scored only two field goals in the first frame, one in the second and none in the third.

Darby's conquest of Atlanta practically was a replay of the New Holland-Jackson contest as the Trojans leaped into an early lead and maintained a comfortable margin throughout the fracas.

Atlanta's Red Raiders fell to a 14-8 first period disadvantage in the contest, following through by trailing at 35-16 at the midmark and 47-33 going into the homestretch.

Atlanta's amazing Freshman Roger Fox starred in the scoring portion of the game by hooping a total of 20 points to reap high-scoring laurels, while Big Bill Rowley was high scorer for his victorious Darby quintet with a total of 19.

Roscoe Blankenship figured in a scramble for the ball under the Darby basket which netted the Trojans two points. Both Blankenship and a Darby player fought up into the air for possession of the leather, both surprised when the ball shot upward, slapped against the backboard and tumbled through the netting.

Schedule for the finals in the 1950 county championship race is:

FRIDAY

Darby vs. New Holland (consolation), 7:30 p. m.

Ashville vs. Walnut (championship), 9 p. m.

Tournament Manager John Hardin said the doors of the coliseum will be opened at 6:30 p. m. in order to take care of the anticipated overflow crowd.

Harlan-Harget Trampoline Act Goes Over Big

A pair of Ohio State university athletes held the 721 paying customers in Pickaway Coliseum spellbound Wednesday with their gyrating antics on the trampoline.

The performers were Bruce Harlan, Olympics diving champion and fifth-ranking AAU performer on the springing tarp; and Kenneth Harget, who ranks third on the trampoline in the U. S.

Harlan and Harget opened their show with a comedy routine clad in Gay Nineties bathing drawers and an assortment of eye glasses and dangling noses.

The crowd was uproarious throughout the windups of each act, although while the performers spun through their assorted twists and flips the only sounds audible in the Coliseum were the twanging of the springs.

Harlan paved the way for the pair's acclaim during the comedy routine when he launched into a back flip, purposely missed the tarp on his downward trip, landed on his feet on the coliseum floor and skidded nearly 10 feet on his nether end.

Marlene Bauer Still Winning

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 23—Young Marlene Bauer of Midland, Tex., moved a stop nearer another golf championship but her older sister, Alice, was on the sidelines today in the international mixed two-ball tournament.

The 15-year-old sensation of the golf links and her partner, Denny Champagne of Orlando, ousted Bea McWane of Birmingham and Clay Gaddie of Cincinnati, 3 and 2, yesterday over the Dubsdread course here.

Alice Bauer, 19, and former Miami University Golf Captain Al Besselink were eliminated by Kathryn Hemphill and Burl Bolesta, both of Tampa, 1-up.

Burton Upsets George Costner

The New York welterweight, who is a stablemate of Robinson, won a split 10-round decision over George Costner of Cincinnati, in Chicago Stadium last night. Burton's victory not only reversed a decision which Costner was awarded in New York recently but may save Robinson the bother of fighting Costner.

Robinson was scheduled to meet the Ohio boxer in Philadelphia March 22. Costner's loss, however, may cost him the match.

Buckeye Cagers Can Win Big 10 If Illini Win

CHICAGO, Feb. 23—Ohio State may win complete possession of the Big Ten basketball championship Saturday without even playing a game.

The Buckeyes already are certain of a share in the Western Conference honors and if Illinois beats Wisconsin, the Ohioans will own the title all alone.

Ohio State has won 10 of 11 games. Coach Tippy Dye's versatile and veteran aggregation plays its final game against Michigan Monday.

An Illinois victory over Wisconsin is far from impossible since the Illini own an impressive home court record of nine triumphs in eleven games this year in both conference and non-conference contests.

Illinois opened the Big Ten season against Wisconsin and lost 59 to 50 in Madison. But at home the Champaign squad proved powerful enough to hand Ohio State its lone conference defeat. The Illini topped the Ohioans, 66 to 50.

Third place Indiana is host to a tall and improving Iowa team Saturday night. According to the oddsmakers, the Hoosiers are an 11-point favorite.

Northwestern is rated three points better than Michigan for a game in Chicago Stadium and Purdue is expected to climb out of the cellar with a victory over Minnesota. The Boilermakers are ranked a six-point advantage on the basis of their home court.

Reserve Teams Show Talent In County Plentiful

Local sports fans were given a chance to see what is coming up in the county in basketball talent during the Wednesday session of Pickaway County basketball tournament—and they showed they were pleased with its findings.

Monroe Township reserve team scored a 33-24 victory over the championship Williamsport reserve team in an exhibition engagement during the evening.

Williamsport had won the county league crown with an unblemished record of 10 wins in as many starts, while Monroe suffered only one league defeat durig the season.

"We lost only to Mt. Sterling and to Williamsport during the season," pointed out Monroe Coach Clyde Plant after the ball game as he accepted second place trophy for his team.

• • •

Both coaches of the two top-notch Pickaway County reserve teams began their coaching careers in their respective schools last Fall.

Monroe rolled up an 11-8 first-quarter lead over the Williamsporters in the exhibition engagement, losing a single point at the half to lead by a 17-15 margin. The Indian juniors followed through with a 25-19 lead at the three-quarter pole and coasted in with the final 33-24 victory.

Ernest Vermaaten won scoring honors during the tussle with a total of 11 points, while Jack Betts and Diminutive "Mouse" Sullivan tied for honors on the Williamsport team with seven points each.

Judge Gives Pupils Outline Of Development Of Nation

Washington Era Cited In Address

Radcliff Compares Past With Present

A comparison of modern problems with those faced by President George Washington in 1790 was made Wednesday by Pickaway Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

Addressing an English Merit Society assembly of Circleville high school pupils, Judge Radcliff pointed out that Washington was the only man elected President without opposition and the only man to receive a unanimous vote of the electoral college.

Washington, he continued, was the only President who believed the "republican" form of government would make this country great. He did not believe in "democracy," the judge said.

The two terms, the judge warned, should not be confused with "parties." He defined "republic" as a government by experts, in which "people elect the governing body and forget about it."

In a "Democracy" people keep a constant interest in government through such things as lobbies and initiative and referendum, he explained.

* * *

JUDGE RADCLIFF limited the comparison of problems to three matters: internal affairs, national defense and foreign affairs.

Taking up internal affairs first, he told the high school pupils, that states rights posed a problem in Washington's time just as with Dixiecrats today.

In 18th Century America, people thought of themselves as Virginians, Georgians or New Englanders first, as Americans second. But under the patient guidance of Washington provincialism was stamped out and "we emerged a strong nation, ceased being a loosely knit group of sovereign states.

As yet, the judge added, the problem of the Dixiecrats has not been solved.

Although the United Mine Workers did not exist in 1790, the era had a comparable problem. At that time the Cherokee and Chickamauga Indian tribes were demanding better treatment, threatened to go on the war path if they did not get it.

"The answer given that time might well have worked today," the judge said. "It was, 'You will be treated fairly, but if you break the peace, you must suffer the consequences.' "

The peace was not broken.

Turning to national defense, Judge Radcliff reminded the pupils of the Compton Commission, appointed to study means of safeguarding the United States. The report was returned in 1947. Judge Radcliff pointed out that conclusions drawn were similar to those appearing in Washington's report to Congress in 1783.

Washington at that time announced as his principals scientific research, industrial mobilization and stock piling, a small standing army backed by universal military training and "some degree of unification was indicated by the fact that an Army officer suggested creation of the Navy."

* * *

DRAWING parallels in foreign affairs of 1790 with today, the judge said the greatest war in history has just ended, in 1790 "we just passed through a revolution and had France as an ally; today all allies want U. S. intervention against a former ally, Russia, while in 1790 "France was clamoring for our help against England."

Washington's solution, said Judge Radcliff, was:

1. To preserve our own ideals of government.
2. Contribute to world peace, but not intervene in problems of individual nations.
3. To transform the world step by step by example of American spirit and leadership.

British Deciding Whether They Are Fed Up With Socialism

LONDON, Feb. 23—Reports from key polling areas indicated that Britons voting to decide the fate of Socialism in the United Kingdom are turning out in larger numbers today than they did in the 1945 parliamentary race.

During the first four hours that the polls were open, women appeared in the majority, with the ratio in several areas as much as three women to one man.

Conservative headquarters confirmed at 7:30 a. m. (EST) that there was a "very heavy vote" in the London area and said there was mounting evidence that the women's poll was exceptionally heavy. The announcement added:

"We are pleased with the indications thus far."

They declared it was too early to comment on the national trend.

This is the day the British decide whether they are fed up with further socialization of its once proud and highly competitive industrial system.

As the polls opened, all the campaigning of recent weeks boiled down to that one sole issue.

There is no other.

For a short time, it appeared that Winston Churchill's dramatic proposal for an early approach for new atomic and world problem discussions with Soviet Russia "at highest level" might throw the election onto an international plane.

But reaction of the United States government and Great Britain's incumbent Labor regime seems to have driven home to the people that the present time is not ripe for any such meeting and that Anglo-American military strength is the best possible means of dealing with Russia for the foreseeable future.

It was noteworthy that the final electioneering editorials in the London press placed all emphasis upon promises of more and better food at lower prices.

Labor claims that Britain is healthier now than it ever was and enjoys far more food calories than it needs for subsistence.

This the Conservatives have not denied. But they have made regimented Britons' mouths water with visions of steaks and chops that have not been available in any quantity for years.

Thus, to paraphrase a napoleonic remark, the final battle of the ballots is being fought on highly personal intensely human lines.

The atomic bomb and the menace of war have been relegated to the background. For despite his hopes of peace talks, Churchill could do no more than Prime Minister Attlee in giving any assurances that catastrophe might not engulf the world some day.

It was logical that the Conservatives should turn to creature comforts of the present. The imponderables have proved almost too much for the public mind to grasp, while bacon, eggs and savory mutton are—or were—deliciously familiar to the British appetite.

This is admittedly a do or die election for Conservatism and that same situation will prevail should the Tories win.

They have made promises that may be difficult to fulfil. The Laborites claim that continued stiff rationing is all tied up with Britain's dollar shortage and economic crisis and that the balance has been held by gravest consideration of all factors, with no single one being permitted to override the others.

The Conservatives have made all-out efforts to prove that nationalization thus far has been a failure and that any more of it will be disastrous.

They have stressed the "levelling off" that is inevitable and have appealed to British pride to restore the enterprise and individualism that are part of an unregimented society.

GOP JOINS DIXIECRATS

Final Vote Is Awaited On Toothless FEPC Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 — A House Republican-Dixiecrat coalition early today tentatively handed President Truman a "toothless" victory by approving a Fair Employment Practices bill without criminal penalties.

Filibuster-weary legislators voted 221-178 to accept the substitute bill offered by Rep. McConnell, (R) Pa., in preference to the administration-supported measure by Rep. Powell, (D) N. Y.

However, a final vote on the measure will not be made until the House reassembles later today.

The final vote was delayed by the action of Rep. Biemiller, (D) Wis., who forced the delay by demanding a printed copy of the bill with all its amendments be read.

When the House meets today, the vote on the bill will be the first order of business.

The House adjourned at 3:20 a. m. after Biemiller's action.

* * *

THE VOTING early today came after more than 15 hours of continuous debate during which Southern Democrats threw their support to the McConnell bill, apparently as the lesser of two evils. They have strenuously opposed any form of civil rights legislation.

During debate several amendments were offered to the McConnell bill.

Originally it had called for no discrimination because of "race, creed or color." This was extended to include no discrimination because of "physical disability, political affiliation or sex."

Proponents of the administration bill immediately scheduled a meeting in Powell's office, presumably to decide whether to go along with the McConnell measure in the final vote, or to make an attempt to recommit the substitute bill.

The Powell bill would have called for a bar to racial discrimination in employment and unions under criminal penalties.

The McConnell bill provides for a Fair Employment Practices Commission "without teeth." It has no power to enforce its decisions and orders.

The bitter, hard-fought tug of war, waged with every parliamentary device in the rule book, had been in progress since Wednesday noon. The McConnell vote began at 2:45 a. m.

* * *

SLEEPY-EYED lawmakers straggled in and out of the chamber and a few spectators remained in the public galleries as floor leaders fought frantically to hold their lines.

Through the long session repeated moves were made by opponents of the administration legislation to adjourn the session, but to no avail.

Meanwhile, more and more Republicans joined the solid bloc of Southern Democrats who have been filibustering in an effort to block enactment of President Truman's number one civil rights bill.

Police Chief Denies All Accusations

Cop Boss May Talk To His Attorney

That was Circleville Police Chief William McCrady's reaction Thursday to charges of incorrect performance of duty hurled in open council meeting by Councilman George Crites Tuesday.

As one local attorney put it: "Bugs denied the allegations and defied the allegator."

McCrady said he was undecided whether he would bring court action for slander against the councilman.

"I'll have to talk with my attorney first," he said. Then he asked:

"What can a little rag-tail like me do against a boy that has $150,000 to make a legal fight last all the way up to the Supreme Court?"

In council chamber Tuesday, Crites charged the little Irish police chief with protecting local gamblers. Said McCrady:

"If the thing had been looked into as carefully as it should have before he opened his mouth, it would be found there are fewer gamblers in town today than there were when I first came on." Chief McCrady has been in police work 30-odd years.

* * *

McCRADY EMPHASIZED, "I get my orders from the safety director, who gets them from the mayor." Then he said:

McCrady denied he had ever threatened to suspend patrolmen who asked permission to do something about gambling. With respect to a charge hurled by Crites that the chief refused to cooperate with other law enforcement officials, he was halfway between laughter and smoky indignation.

"He said the boy across the street was afraid I'd tip somebody off." The chief made a gesture of contempt. "I never have tipped anybody off."

By "the boy across the street" McCrady referred to Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

Then the chief grinned. "I understand Crites got an earful from the American Legion. They don't have any slot machines over there."

A Legion member said Thursday that the local post did have slot machines Wednesday morning, but had none Wednesday night.

VOLUNTARY RATIONING IS ASKED

The governor telegraphed the President that "coal supply in Ohio is growing acutely scarce" and that "emergency situations have already risen, but local communities have been able thus far to solve them by getting special service." Then Lausche stated:

"Within a few days point will be reached where solution will no longer be possible."

The governor told the President he was wiring him "so you will be acquainted with my view of what the situation is in Ohio."

Lausche also issued a proclamation urging Ohioans to ration themselves voluntarily during the coal crisis. He struck at "certain consumers who have substantial supplies of coal on hand but in spite of that situation are continuing to receive increased supplies." He continued:

* * *

"IT IS APPARENT that difficulties and suffering can be avoided by an allocation of the coal supply in accordance with need. Therefore I ask that those who have an ample supply discontinue acquiring more coal so that allocations can be made to relieve emergency situations."

The governor made it plain to newsmen that his proclamation was designed to lend moral support to distributors who are being pressured by their better customers for stockpiles of coal.

Fuel supplies in some of Pickaway County's institutions were beginning to dwindle this week as the result of the strikes.

Berger hospital was reported to be operating on a one-day supply of coal Thursday while the Pickaway County home reportedly had only a 10-12 day supply in its bins.

Nurse Wanda Hildenbrand of the Berger hospital staff, reported that the institution's stoker plant had broken down and that an old furnace was being fired up to heat the hospital.

"We have to use the chunk coal in the furnace," she said. "We have a good supply of stoker coal, but only about a day's supply of lump coal."

Jim Mowery, County Home superintendent, said that he has received two truckloads of coal

Only One County School Still Closed By Illness

Only one Pickaway County school continued to be closed because of illness Thursday as all of the buildings opened for "tests."

The lone school is Saltcreek Township school, which dismissed Thursday when 33 percent of its lower grade boys and girls were absent. The overall absence for the school was listed at 26 percent.

Meanwhile, the other six county system schools which closed their doors Monday reopened for classes Thursday, according to George D. McDowell, county superintendent of schools, although absences still are high in most of the schools.

Jackson Township decided to continue its classwork Thursday when only 19 percent of its total enrollment was found absent.

* * *

ROBERT MOYER, Jackson superintendent, said that 25 percent of the elementary school youngsters failed to appear Thursday while only 14 percent of the high school girls and boys were absent.

Wayne Township school elected to continue classes when a total of 23.6 percent of its youngsters remained home.

"I believe the situation will improve now," opined Principal George Mallett. "Classes always are light on the first day following a dismissal."

Superintendent Alfred Axe reported that 22 percent of the total Walnut enrollment was missing Thursday but that "as far as I know school will continue unless the board orders differently."

Pickaway Township school, first of the county schools to close its doors, reported only 13 percent absenteeism Thursday as it resumed its operations.

McDowell said that while he had no report from either Madison or Duvall schools he was positive the two schools were resuming their classes Thursday. Neither school has a telephone.

Circleville schools, meanwhile, appear to be steadily improving, according to Superintendent Frank Fischer.

Fischer said that only 189 youngsters failed to report to classes Wednesday.

'Mercy' Victim Could Have Lived 2 Days Longer

MANCHESTER, N. H., Feb. 23—The state opened its murder case against Dr. Hermann N. Sander today with the charge that the handsome, 41-year-old physician had admitted his cancer patient would have lived two days longer if he had not injected air into her veins.

Sander's admission, Attorney General William L. Phinney said in his opening statement to the jury, was made to Dr. Robert E. Byron, who was called in as medical referee when the death chart of Mrs. Abbie Borroto, the patient, was under discussion.

Phinney declared that Dr. Sander admitted to Dr. Byron that Mrs. Borroto had died of air injections. The prosecutor added that Dr. Sander had told Dr. Byron he injected the air because

Cooking School Is Booked For Revival In Circleville

Spokesmen for the Ohio Fuel as Co. and The Circleville Herald announced Thursday that the popular food institute will be presented in Circleville Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, March 7, 8 and 9.

The spokesmen said arrangements were completed Thursday after ironing out details with enterprising Circleville merchants who will play a major role in the show.

The last food institute given in Circleville was in 1942. Wartime restrictions forced cancellation of the cooking school until this year.

This year's performances will be held in Circleville Memorial Hall and each show will start at 2 p. m. daily. Doors of the hall will be opened at 12:30 p. m. so that visitors may visit and examine the many home articles which will be on display.

* * *

OFFICIALS said that plenty of chairs have been made available in Memorial Hall, that the structure is being put in readiness for the three-day event.

No admission charge will be made for any of the events and numerous prizes will be awarded at each session without cost or obligation to attendants.

The return of the food institute will be welcomed by the many women who looked forward to it each year before the war caused it to be discontinued in 1942.

For women who never have had the opportunity to attend its sessions, this will be a new and enjoyable experience.

A beautiful New Freedom gas kitchen will be installed on

AFL Chieftain OKs Government Mine Seizure

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—AFL President William Green today advocated government seizure of the coal mines as a "last resort" method of ending the coal strike.

Green said that he was "not sure" whether the time was ripe for such action, but he commented that newspaper reports indicate "a critical stage in some places."

He told a Senate judiciary subcommittee that he was certain the miners would go back to work if the government takes over and said he believed President Truman has the right to order seizure without authorization from Congress.

2 Men Placed On Probation

Two men indicted by Pickaway County grand jury last week have been placed on probation by Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

Placed on probation for five years was Darrel Quincel, who pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—A U. S. Navy rocket missile research expert declared his belief today that "flying saucers" he has investigated actually were space ships operated by "animate, intelligent beings," possibly from Mars.

Commander Robert B. McLaughlin, writing in the current issue of True Magazine, said that questioning of Navy observers who spotted and tracked an object in April, 1949, "produced almost unanimous judgment" it was a "flying saucer."

Analyzing the data turned in by five Navy researchers and scientists who spotted the object near the White Sands, N. M., proving grounds, McLaughlin wrote the object was elliptical in shape and about 105 feet in diameter. He declared it was speeding at about four miles per second at an altitude of approximately 56 miles, and added:

"I am convinced that it was a flying saucer and, further, that these disks are space ships from another planet, operated by animate, intelligent beings.

* * *

"HALLUCINATION? Optical illusion? I think it is reasonable to say that illusions do not appear simultaneously and identically to five different trained weather observers. I cannot think of any other possibilities. Reliable observers saw the object."

McLaughlin asserted that the design, construction and operations of the saucer indicated to him that a "very superior intelligence is at work; not only at work, but present within the disks."

"Where the saucers come from can only be answered by guesswork. My guess is Mars.

"Mars 'cooled off' and perhaps became capable of supporting some form of life millions of years before earth did. The Martians, if such there be, would have a big start in scientific development.

"What are the saucers up to? So far, their behavior would indicate that they are interested only in observing us. The fact that the saucers' operations so far have been peaceful also seems to knock out the suspicion that they have been launched by a foreign earth power, such as Russia.

"If it is not fantastic for us to explore other planets, why should it be fantastic for Martians, say, to visit us."

Local Officials Testify In Red Martin's Trial

Two neighbors of accused Slayer Cecil B. "Red" Martin testified in Columbus court Thursday that they heard screams in Martin's Columbus home the night that Theodore B. White, 58, was killed.

Mrs. Beatrice Anderson and Robert Graham testified that they were living in a duplex next door to the Martin home last June 4, the time of the slaying.

Martin's trial on first degree murder charges was reopened Thursday after a one-day Washington birthday recess with resumption of testimony by Mrs. Betty Arnett, 22. She was picked up with Martin in White's car.

Mrs. Arnett, a pretty, slim, dark-haired girl, nervously told the court that she once heard White threaten not to let anyone use his car. As her fingers twined tensely around dark brown gloves, Mrs. Arnett said she was not absolutely sure White's statement was directed at Martin.

Next to take the stand was Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff who identified various exhibits presented by Franklin County Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett.

One exhibit was a group of four pictures taken by the sheriff's photographer-son, Dwight, at the shallow sandy grave on the bank of Little Walnut Creek near Ashville where White's body was found June 13.

British Poll Odds Given

LONDON, Feb. 23—The betting odds on a Conservative election victory narrowed today to 11 to 10, while the Laborites remained six to four favorites.

Mayor Fixes Police Radio

Circleville and Pickaway County law enforcement offices were without two-way radio operation nearly six hours Thursday.

The police reported that the system "went on the blink" at about 4 a. m. Thursday.

Mayor Thurman I. Miller, also a professional radio mechanic by trade, fixed the trouble at about 10 a. m. when he critically eyed the master set in the third floor of City Hall, plucked out a belligerent fuse and inserted an auto fuse.

Police Chief Denies All Accusations

Crites in council was that McCrady consistently wears incorrect uniform, actually no uniform at all.

"He goes around," said Crites, "with a gun sticking out of one pocket, a blackjack out the other. The state code says the police chief is supposed to set a good example for his men."

All in the interest of detective work, retorted the Irish cop Thursday.

* * *

"AND WHAT DO you think would happen," he demanded, "if I walked in one of these stores all dressed up in a uniform. You can't catch any shoplifters that way."

And while on the subject of catching crooks, the chief said:

"It is not the first duty of an officer to catch criminals. His first duty is to prevent crime. And that's what I'm trying to do."

The chief said he is not required to wear a uniform on duty, that a long-forgotten city ordinance gives him authority to dress as a plainclothesman—all in the interest of sleuthing and detecting and prevention of crime.

It is for similar reasons, the chief claims, that one police cruiser remains unlettered. "How can you catch anyone if you ride around in a car that's all lettered up?" he demanded.

In his council chamber blast Crites accused the police chief of bungling the job of lifting fingerprints, called him "the worst fingerprint artist in the world." Referring to a recent jewelry store robbery, Crites said McCrady went down to take fingerprints and "rubbed them all off."

And to all this McCrady replied simply:

"I never claimed to be a fingerprint expert. But somebody has to take them, and nobody else in the department has learned how."

Concerning Crites' assertion that he has failed to enforce parking meter laws, McCrady said:

* * *

"DO THEY WANT me to do everything around here? I've got men out working on meters. What more do they want? And just what are these things I've failed to do?"

Crites said Tuesday, "Bugs has been a thorn in the side of every mayor and safety director. He won't do it. The city spends about $20,000 a year on the police department. About 50 percent of the money is thrown away."

To which McCrady replied: "Let's find out about that thorn-in-the-side business." He addressed the question to Safety Director C. O. Leist, who said:

"You've never been a thorn in my side. I've never had any trouble with you. Nothing but cooperation."

"Some of the patrolmen," McCrady said, "complain that they can't do anything on their own. That they have to ask the chief about everything they do.

"Well, that's right. They do. I'm the only one who can give them orders. And that's by law. The safety director can't tell them what to do directly. He has to give me the orders."

The storm generated in council Tuesday by Crites was centered on an ordinance designed to reduce the chief's pay from $211.75 per month to $150. The bill was tabled Feb. 7.

Crites wound up his speech with a motion to order the bill off the table. The motion was defeated four to three.

It was made clear, however, that the ordinance was not dead and that a motion to bring the bill off the table could be brought up again.

The Columbus Dispatch Thursday quoted McCrady as saying:

* * *

"THERE IS NO truth in the fact that I am protecting gamblers. Let Crites prove it. We have a jealous sheriff who is mad because I took some Cincinnati detectives to a place here to recover some stolen property.

"I have called other law enforcement officers every time the opportunity has presented itself to do so. The sheriff would do well to clean up the county, he has plenty of spots operating there."

The Dispatch said Sheriff Radcliff's reaction was:

Only 1.5 Pct. Of Ashville TB Tests Feared

Only 1.5 percent of the 658 persons who submitted to the mass x-ray program in Ashville Feb. 7 were found "suspect" of tuberculosis.

"That doesn't mean that any of them have the disease at all," hastily pointed out Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, as he thumbed through the report.

"Those x-rays which were taken during the mass exam were miniature pictures," he pointed out. "We are contacting the 10 'suspect' cases now so that the larger 14x10 inch pictures may be made to determine whether they actually have contracted the disease."

The doctor continued that the state department used the miniature prints only as a sample indicator, and listing "suspect" anything that "looks the least bit suspicious."

"I'm glad to add that none of the pupils of Ashville school, its teachers, cooks or bus drivers were listed among the 'suspect' cases," Blackburn said.

"All of the school tests proved negative."

Howard Sweetman Injured When Struck By Auto

Howard Sweetman, 73, former Pickaway County surveyor, was injured seriously at 6:35 p. m. Wednesday when he was struck by an auto on North Court street.

Officer George Green reported that Sweetman was struck by an auto driven by Robert Grant, 23-year-old Columbus policeman, as he attempted to walk across court street at the intersection of Pinckney street.

Grant stated that Sweetman had started across the street against the red light and added that he had not seen the man in the driving rain. Green said that Grant apparently had been driving slowly.

"His auto was stopped only a very short distance from the scene," Green said.

Sweetman was rushed into Berger hospital for emergency treatment. He was said to be suffering from head injuries. His condition Thursday was reported "poor." His health has been failing the last few years.

of 59-year-old Mrs. Borroto's "pleadings."

The prosecutor quoted Dr. Sander as having said he "might have broken the law—but that the law was not right and should be changed."

He said the state will prove that air injection in the veins will cause an embolism and death.

Medical testimony, he said, will show that the 40 cc of air administered into the woman's veins did cause her death.

"The deliberate, premeditated killing," he said, "under our law is murder. The law is designed for the protection of all the citizens. The motive behind any killing, whether it is good or bad, still remains a killing."

man to request National Guard troops to protect coal miners who wish to return to work.

Case is the author of the labor bill which the President vetoed several years ago. He announced his candidacy earlier this week for the United States Senate.

The bill declares that a national emergency exists as a result of the coal strike and calls upon the President to request the miners to return to work. To protect those who do, the President is empowered to ask state governors to call out National Guardsmen.

The President is further authorized under the bill to direct the attorney general to take necessary legal steps to end "interference" with coal mining.

Roman Catholics Here Schedule Lenten Rites

Father Edward J. Reidy said the services started Wednesday with rosary, sermon and benediction. Similar services will take place at 7:30 p. m. each Sunday and Wednesday until Palm Sunday, he said.

Station of the Cross and benediction services will be held each Friday at 7:30 p. m. during Lenten season, he added.

Father Reidy said a tentative plan is being worked out for an exchange of pastors during the Lenten season, with Father Reidy taking Father Otto F. Guenther's place in Washington C. H. and Father Guenther coming here.

Town To Get Bomb Shelter

Mayor Fred P. James said late yesterday that the 10-by-12 foot structure would be used to store village records.

Originally conceived as a fireproof storage place with a 12-inch ceiling of reinforced concrete, a layer of lead will be added around it to make it impervious to atom or H-bomb rays.

Bradley To Tell Enemy Weapons

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Gen. Omar Bradley goes to Capitol Hill today to report on the possible types of mass-destruction weapons an enemy might use against United States and her big cities.

Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was called to a closed-door meeting of the congressional atomic committee, which is opening a study of how to protect city civilian populations in event of an atomic-hydrogen Pearl Harbor.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 23—Four hooded bandits broke into the home of multi-millionaire William G. Mather early today, slugged his wife and looted a safe of an estimated $350,000 in uninsured jewels.

Police in suburban Bratenahl said that the thugs, one of them armed with a submachinegun, threatened to harm Mather if his wife did not reveal the combination to the safe.

Cleveland detectives and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation planned to question the domestic staff at the exclusive residential mansion. It was learned that the quartet entered the home through a rear servants door which was unlocked.

One of the kitchen maids, Miss Elizabeth Demeter, 23, told police the door was bolted when she came to work at 11 p. m.

The robbers took only $100 in cash, but the jewelry stolen included three diamond necklaces and a pearl strand, each valued at $25,000 by Mrs. Mather.

Bratnahl Police Chief William l'Estrange said "this was not an amateur job. They had a complete layout. They knew just where to go."

Bartlett also produced for the sheriff's identification a cameo tie clasp, a discolored tie and a sealed coffee can containing bloody paper napkins which were found stuffed in the victim's mouth.

Dr. Lloyd Jonnes, Pickaway County coroner, testified that the autopsy on White disclosed death due to a fractured skull.

Mrs. Anderson testified that Martin was on the porch of his home and talked to a "colored man" who came up and talked to him on the Saturday night of the murder.

She said the first man left and that "Cecil" called White into the house when the latter drove up to the curb and parked his car.

She told the court that a few minutes after White and Martin went into the house she heard two yells and then a "colored fellow" ran out of the house.

Amos Reall, Martin's accused accomplice, was brought into the court room in handcuffs and identified by Mrs. Anderson as the "colored man" she saw talking to Martin.

Ohio Coal Crisis Seen

this week to alleviate a threatened serious shortage in the Home.

"We had only about a four-day supply Monday," Mowery said. "With the two truckloads though we're in pretty good shape now."

The coal bins in Circleville schools are well filled, according to Virgil Cress, clerk to the city board of education.

"I believe we have enough coal right now to carry us through," Cress said.

Pickaway County Children's Home also was feeling the bite of the shortage until Superintendent Winfield Koch contracted shipments by truck.

Koch said the Children's Home has been receiving regular shipments via truck.

Pickaway County schools, for the most part, are in good shape, according to George D. McDowell, county superintendent of schools.

"We found that some of the schools were watching diminishing supplies when we made a survey last week," McDowell reported, "although the majority seemed to be fairly well stocked.

"None has contacted me to report drastic shortages," he added.

Cincinnati coal merchants warned that the bottom is in sight. Columbus dealers reported only a four or five-day supply. Akron suppliers may ask Mayor Charles E. Slusser for emergency rationing powers.

* * *

CLEVELAND'S emergency supply is gone, although schools, hospitals and most public buildings have enough coal for three or four weeks.

Mayor Thomas A. Burke began rationing procedures Wednesday, but 150 families were still without fuel today.

In Geneva, school and hospital officials reported a four-to-six-week supply on hand, but a survey of coal dealers showed that stockpiles were virtually cleaned out.

The Ashtabula council unanimously passed an ordinance permitting the rationing of coal. In Fremont, a rubber company had to lend the high school 30 tons of coal to see the institution through the next two weeks.

Only in Portsmouth was there a reversal of the trend. There the Detroit Steel Corporation's Portsmouth plant announced that coke production would be resumed fullscale within a few days.

The company signed an agreement with the United Mine Workers to permit its captive Eastern Kentucky mines to resume operations.

An emergency shipment of about 14 carloads was promised Cleveland within a week but will do little to alleviate the situation in the state's biggest city. Meanwhile, orders from home owners for the most part could not be filled. Even emergency supplies were exhausted.

In Cincinnati, dealers warned that "so far as domestic coal is concerned, we are practically out." Institutions still have a short supply, although the University of Cincinnati has a bare week's supply. Dean Norman P. Auburn said then the institution might have to close.

Ohio State university in Columbus also is down to a week's supply, while the city itself is down to four or five days. Dealers are voluntarily rationing deliveries to a ton or a half-ton rate. A delivery of 250 tons to the school system prevented a shutdown temporarily.

NATIONAL TRIP AHEAD?

4 County 4-H Leaders Tagged For State Honors

Four outstanding Pickaway County 4-H Club boys and girls have been selected as candidates for statewide honors.

Genevieve Alley, county home demonstration agent, said the names and records of the four 4-H'ers have been forwarded to a state selection committee as possible delegates to the National and Founders' 4-H Club camps.

Only two boys and two girls from the entire state will be selected to attend the two national camps, said Miss Alley, while each county will submit the names of four boys and girls to be considered.

"Each of the four members we have selected are outstanding in their work," Miss Alley said. "Each has a 4-H Club record which is brimful."

Dick, 20-year-old member of Monroe Future Farmers Club has been a club member and junior leader for eight years and has completed 14 projects.

* * *

THE LAD WAS graduated by Monroe Township school in 1947 and was the winner of the annual Danforth award for 4-H'ers last year. In addition he is a member of the county 4-H Club advisory council and a member of the County Extensioneers Club. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dick of Monroe Township and is at present farming with his father.

Jean Dearth, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Dearth of Kingston Route 1, is a senior in Saltcreek Township school and has been in 4-H Club activities eight years. She has completed 12 projects.

In addition, the Saltcreek lass has held all offices in her Saltcreek Victory Stitchers Club, a member of the County Extensioneers and has been outstanding in her camp counseling work.

Miss Dearth was the 1949 "dress-up-dress" winner during the Ohio State Fair and a delegate to the Ohio-West Virginia Rural Youth Conference last Fall.

David Six, 18, is a member of the Duval Go-Getters Livestock Club and has completed seven projects during his three years of clubwork.

The young farmer is president of the County Extensioneers and was secretary of the Go-Getters Club last year. He was graduated by Ashville school last year.

In addition, Six was one of the county delegates attending the Ohio-West Virginia Conference also last Fall. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Six.

* * *

LOIS DEFENBAUGH, 18, is a freshman enrolled in Ohio State university. She plans to major in home economics.

Miss Defenbaugh has been engaged in 4-H Club activities seven years and has completed 17 projects. She is a member of both the Saltcreek Stitch and Chatter Club and the Saltcreek Valley Livestock Club, while assisting as adviser for the Saltcreek Junior Stitch and Chatter Club.

The girl has held offices in both senior clubs as well as proving outstanding as a camp counselor. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Defenbaugh.

Miss Alley said the names of the four youngsters will be sent into the state office, where a committee consisting of extension agents and members of the state staff will judge which pairs of boys and girls will be selected to attend the two camps.

The selections are to be completed during National 4-H Club week—March 5 through 12.

Chaw Tobacco Use In U.S. Is On Down Trend

The Agriculture Department said today that cut plug and scrap chewing tobacco consumption is expected to drop for the sixth straight year in 1950. Eighty-nine million pounds were produced last year for a drop of about eight million pounds from the year before.

More cigarets were smoked last year than in any previous year. The department said 352 billion butts were puffed away. That's almost seven cigaretes a day for each man, woman and child in the United States.

Cigar consumption dropped slightly last year to 5.6 billion, pipe tobacco was steady at 108 million pounds and snuff, too, held steady at 41 million pounds.

Teen Tips

Top glamor-aid for girls and good-groomer for boys is a deodorant. It enhances appealing daintiness for girls and attractive cleanliness for boys—making you "nice to be near" in spite of heat, humidity, sports or dancing.

Don't get the wrong idea. Deodorants aren't merely pretty-makers or cosmetics for girls and women. If you perspire, you need one—and everybody perspires, masculine and feminine. The only difference is that boys and men use unperfumed deodorants while girls sometimes use scented deodorants or anti-perspirants, according to preference.

Good deodorants prevent perspiration odor, but do not check perspiration. An unscented cream deodorant is the best choice for boys and men and some girls also prefer it, especially if the skin of the underarms is sensitive and easily irritated. This does not harm fabrics, but, since it doesn't check perspiration, some girls also use dress-shields to protect clothing. Just apply a fingertipful of the unscented white cream deodorant to the underarms after bathing and it disappears instantly into the skin, leaving no trace of greasiness or stickiness. You're not conscious of it at all. Make this a daily habit like brushing your teeth for your own satisfaction and for the sake of others who are near you.

For girls and women, there are anti-perspirants in cream or liquid form. These stop or check perspiration from one to five days, depending on the individual, and are used when it's important to protect fragile dress fabrics from possible perspiration moisture—a dress that is too sheer for dress-shields, a sleeveless sundress or an evening dress. Test it, though, before trusting it completely when you plan to wear a new dress because some anti-perspirants are more effective on some people than others. Some girls find they always depend on dress-shields for utmost protection from ugly stains.

For information about these deodorants and anti-perspirants, write to Elinor Williams in care of The Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a reply.

$15,000 Awarded After Accident

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—Jay J. Demarest of Columbus is to get $15,000 from the Columbus Green Cabs, Inc., and John E. Spoonster of Wadsworth for the death of his wife and his injuries in a Jan. 17, 1948 traffic accident.

Demarest was granted the judgment at the climax of a five-day trial here. He and his wife were passengers in a cab which collided with Spoonster's auto. His attorney, Paul M. Herbert, had filed a suit for $25,000.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. WASHINGTON REPORT

By SENATOR ROBERT A. TAFT

One of the favorite slogans of those who are interested in establishing in this country a socialized state is "Social Insurance." It has a friendly sound and is made to look like a development of one of the most typical features of a free economy. It has almost become a "virtue" word. As a matter of fact, it is one of the most effective weapons to turn over to the federal government a predominate power in the daily lives of our people.

It is already in effect as Old Age and Survivors Insurance. It has been approved by the House of Representatives for permanent disability.

It is strongly urged for medical care as the principal feature of the program to socialize medicine. In England it now covers every contingency from the cradle to the grave.

The very term, however, is a misrepresentation. It is not insurance, but rather a system of taxation to support a plan of government payments to persons who, at the time, are not earning those payments.

It is not insurance, because insurance is a voluntary contract. Social insurance is compulsory. It is not insurance, because insurance is the payment of a sum which fairly represents the risk insured against, a plan by which a number of people spread the risks of some type of misfortune which may happen to some of them, or a plan by which one person spreads over a long period of time the risk of something which may happen to him all at one time.

* * *

THE PAYMENTS made in social insurance have little if any relation to the risk insured against. The payroll deductions on which most social insurance is based have all the characteristics of taxation. They are compulsory. The amount paid has only a remote relation, if any, to the valuation of the risk involved or to the service utimately received. Thus, under the existing old age insurance, persons may receive substantial pensions whose payroll taxes have lasted for only a short time and persons in the $1,200 income group get much more for their money than those in the $3,000 group. Under the compulsory medical insurance, a $3,000 man without a family may pay ten times as much for his medical care as does the $1,000 man with a wife and three children.

I am in favor of the old age insurance plan. But we would do a much better job if we recognized that it is not insurance but a system of taxation to help support the aged. The same thing is true of unemployment insurance supported by a tax of 3 per cent of payroll.

Payroll taxes, in general, are passed on to the consumer and increase the price of goods. This is certainly true of that portion paid by the employer which becomes a cost of production for all those in the industry. It is partially true of the portion paid by employees, because wage negotiations are largely conducted on a take-home pay basis. The result is that the cost of these programs is a burden on the entire community, paid for the most part in higher prices for food and clothing and every other necessity. Every family in the land is taxed to make these payments. The total amount of these payments is already considerable.

THE 1951 BUDGET estimates payments under the old age insurance plan of $2.3 billion, under unemployment compensation of $1.5 billion, under other retirement funds of another billion dollars, a total of more than $4.5 billion. If this is a tax, we have to consider how large a burden we can safely or properly place on people who are working, to support those who at the time are not paying their way. Furthermore, the idea of insurance usually involves a federal fund and so, as in the case of medicine, it means not only the socialization but the nationalization of the medical care or the other free service involved.

Social insurance in some fields has real merit, but it should be recognized for what it is—taxation of the people to provide great national services expending vast sums of money for those who, in the past, have paid their own way.

Quaker Groups Ask Surplus Food Be Used

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 — A group of 50 farmers, who met in Washington under the auspices of two Quaker organizations, has issued a statement calling on the government to give away surplus food rather than letting it rot.

The group said:

"There is no surplus of food from the viewpoint of the world as a whole. Millions of people in many countries, including our own, are miserably undernourished while 'surplus' farm products rot in storage."

The group asked that the U. S. economy of "abundance" be hitched tight to international planning for effective distribution, and declared:

"We believe that this is the great religious challenge of our times, and we appeal, not only to our government, but to individual citizens, that we now show ourselves willing to use our resources for peace."

The Time The Anti-Trust Lawyers Killed Their Own Case!

For ten years the anti-trust lawyers have been attacking the business methods that make it possible to give the public the best quality food at the lowest prices.

In our last ad we told you how Federal Judge W. H. Atwell, at Dallas, threw the anti-trust lawyers and all their inflammatory charges against A&P right out of his court.

But the anti-trust lawyers were not satisfied with decisions against them by three federal judges.

They Appealed to New Orleans

So they appealed Judge Atwell's decision to the three-judge Circuit Court at New Orleans.

One of the three, Judge Curtis L. Waller, agreed with Judge Atwell that the case should be dismissed.

The other two members of the Circuit Court, Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, Jr., and Judge Allen Cox, although saying the case should be tried, agreed that the indictment was vague and contained many allegations which were inflammatory.

They decided that Judge Atwell at Dallas should protect A&P from these inflammatory allegations and could order the anti-trust lawyers to supply the defendants with a bill of particulars.

So the case was back in Dallas again.

He said that without this inflammatory and prejudicial matter the Grand Jury might never have returned the indictment.

Judge Atwell said to the anti-trust lawyers:

"There are many statements in the indictment which are not at all in violation, and are highly prejudicial and inflammatory."

The anti-trust lawyers objected. They advanced an amazing argument. They said that the removal of their inflammatory allegations (which all four judges had agreed did not belong in the indictment) destroyed their case.

Judge Atwell instructed the anti-trust lawyers to furnish the court with a bill of particulars. In short, he wanted specific charges instead of vague generalities. He set the deadline for furnishing this material at January 15th, 1944.

When the anti-trust lawyers twice asked for more time, pleading sickness among their staff, Judge Atwell extended the time to February 25th because he believed that they were honestly trying, in good faith, to prepare the material he had requested.

Actually, it developed, they were using the time to get ready to drop the case in Dallas and start it in another court.

They Quit in Dallas

On February 26th, while the judge was still waiting for his answer, and without any previous notice to him, the anti-trust lawyers gave a story to the newspapers in Washington, announcing that they were dropping the case in Dallas.

They said that it was their intention "to file a substantially similar suit in an appropriate jurisdiction at an early date."

The "early date" turned out to be the same day.

As soon as one anti-trust lawyer killed the case in Dallas, another anti-trust lawyer filed a new case in Danville, Illinois. This new case made most of the same allegations that had been made and dropped in Dallas; and that are being made against us today.

So now, according to the anti-trust lawyers, all four judges who had ruled on the Dallas case were wrong.

When Judge Atwell heard of their action he ordered the anti-trust lawyers to prepare an order for his signature dismissing the Dallas case.

In signing this order he said to the anti-trust lawyers:

"This nolle prosequi does not have the sanction or approval of this court. That is not necessary, nor that the government ask for the court's approval.

"It is, however, a matter that may be presented to the other court and may be of interest to the people at large."

So after their efforts to destroy A&P had failed in Washington, D. C., Wilson, North Carolina, and Dallas, Texas, the anti-trust lawyers moved on to Danville, Illinois.

They were still determined to destroy this company which had brought more and better food at lower cost to millions of American families.

They Were Wrong Three Times Before!

Three times the anti-trust lawyers went into federal courts and made serious and damaging charges against A&P.

Three times federal judges said the anti-trust lawyers were wrong and rendered decisions against them.

In previous ads in this series we told you about these other anti-trust "cases" involving us, which the judges said were not cases at all.

We think you should know about these previous cases, because once again the anti-trust lawyers are making damaging "allegations" that could seriously affect our business if they were believed by the public.

There was the time in Washington, D. C., when they said we and other good American citizens conspired to fix the price of bread in that city.

This was the time Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough ruled that A&P and the other defendants did not even need to put in a defense. He instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of "not guilty".

It was the time Judge Goldsborough said to the anti-trust lawyers:

"If you were to show this record to any experienced trial lawyer in the world, he would tell you that there was not any evidence at all.

"Honestly, I have never in my over forty years' experience seen tried a case that was as absolutely devoid of evidence as this. That is the honest truth. I have never seen one like it."

There was the time in Wilson, North Carolina, they said we and other good American citizens conspired to fix prices paid farmers for their potatoes.

This was the time Federal Judge C. C. Wyche directed the jury to bring in a verdict of "not guilty".

It was the time Judge Wyche said to the anti-trust lawyers:

"In my opinion there is no testimony produced from which it can reasonably be inferred that the defendants entered into a combination to depress or lower the price of potatoes.

"I might say that I never tried a case in my life where a greater effort, more work, more investigation had been done, combing almost with a fine-tooth comb to gather evidence.

"But, as was said a long time ago, you can't make brick without straw, and you can't make a case without facts."

There was the time in Dallas, Texas, when they made practically the same "allegations" they are making today.

This was the time Federal Judge W. H. Atwell ruled that the case should not even be tried. He said that the indictment contained inflammatory statements that he would not permit to be presented to a jury.

It was the time Judge Atwell said to the anti-trust lawyers:

"I know of no American rule, and I wish I had the power to underscore the word 'American,' which permits us to try a man because of his size.

"If I thought I was presiding over a court and that I might have to sentence some person because he was a great big fellow, or because he was a Lilliputian, I would feel like resigning. God knows we don't want it ever to occur in America that the size is going to determine whether a man is guilty or innocent."

Less U.S. Spending Is Said Needed

Economist Points To Buyer Action

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—Less government spending would mean a greater demand for "food and shelter, clothing, radio, television, amusements and all types of durable consumer goods."

This statement came yesterday from Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, economics expert for International News Service, speaking before the Ohio Savings and Loan League in Columbus. He said:

"The give-away politicians have tended to pull the wool over the eyes of the public by making it appear that balancing the federal budget would be negative. They imply that prudence would deprive the people of valuable services."

"This specious doctrine that prudence leads to national austerity is sheer bunk. On the contrary, if forbearance in government spending were translated into tax relief, the effect would be to increase the net take-home pay of every citizen."

The INS commentator told the building and loan executives:

• • •

"IN THE LIGHT of the Cold War and the $257 billion accumulated debt and the resultant fiscal crisis, it behooves Uncle Sam to shift back to the states, the localities and to private industry and investment all of the activities which they are ready and able to carry on. This means reversing the trend toward ever growing centralized government. The present situation calls for the very reverse of socialism."

He said:

"It is sheer immaturity for the budget makers to set up a rubber yardstick calling for as much economy as is consistent with a politician's dream for high level spending.

"The swollen character of the debt and the recurrence of deficits call for postponement or even abandonment of some schemes which under other circumstances might have been peaceably acceptable.

"In the nature of things, budget making is a discipline, entailing selection and rejection of items competing for favorable attention. It signifies a managerial breakdown when budgetmaking is looked upon as mere addition of the appetites of pressure groups."

Looking Ahead

By George Benson
President
Harding College

The farming people of Arkansas banded together last week in a significant movement for mutual financial benefit. It isn't political. No frantic appeals for funds are being sent up to Washington. Home folks are simply getting together, looking a common economic problem squarely in the eye, and pooling their ideas, energies and resources to find a solution. It seems to me there are several good lessons in this approach.

Farm agencies had found that 1,500,000 acres of productive Arkansas farms would lie fallow when spring planting began.

About 500,000 acres is extremely rich cotton and rice land removed from production by federal acreage control—in a logical outgrowth of the present price support program. The other 1,000,000 acres is mostly in small hill farms on which cotton has failed as a paying crop. This much productive land out of use would hurt many farmers directly and everybody in the state indirectly by holding down both farm commodities production and the creation of wealth.

• • •

THE GOVERNOR called a meeting. All farm groups were represented. An "Action Program" was set up, with the president of the state University as director. Organizations of such diverse political views as the Farmers Union and the Farm Bureau Federation pledged 100 percent support.

THE program recognizes (and this is significant) the almost limitless opportunities of a free market, the adaptability of our soils to many uses, and the need for agricultural education on the part of a large percentage of our farm population.

Farmers of the rich cotton and rice lands, for instance, will be reached and told how they may plant, cultivate, harvest and market soybeans and alfalfa, two highly remunerative crops now in big demand on the market. The hill farmers will be helped into livestock production on acres that wouldn't pay off in cotton but will make fine pastures and feed crops. Farm feeds imported last year cost Arkansas farmers $25,000,000. So this market is wide open to Arkansas producers of feed crops.

The results, if successful, would be like putting 15,000 farm families (with 100-acre farms) on a self supporting basis, from scratch.

• • •

OR LIKE PUTTING perhaps twice that many established farmers in the profit column who otherwise might go in the red, support programs notwithstanding. Instead of a skyrocketing federal outlay to support a market-glutting farm production, we have here, in the Arkansas farmers' self-reliant action, the intelligent turning of land into newly developing crops for which the consuming public will pay good prices.

This has the basic elements of sane economics. Add to it, consistent well-supported research to develop new, improved farming methods that would lower crop production costs (and thus the consumer price)—and we have the broad basis for an economically sound long range program.

In contrast to the free market idea, toward which the Arkansas farm leaders are entering in this instance, we have an example at hand of the politically-planned "controlled" economics.

It's the potato story. It is ridiculous. It would even be amusing if so much of the taxpayers' money weren't involved. Since undertaking the economic control of potatoes, the federal government has spent about $500,000,000 buying spuds at $1.25 a bushel. The artificially aided retail price hit consumers (taxpayers) for untold additional millions at the retail markets.

The government burned millions of dollars worth of its potato hoard. It now is treating the remaining mountain of spuds with chemical dyes and selling them back to the farmers at 1 cent per 100 pounds, for swine feed. Meantime, a New Orleans food broker has just imported a million pounds of Canadian potatoes to sell to American housewives. He truthfully points out that he can buy and deliver the Canadian spuds cheaper than he can the politically-regulated potatoes of Maine and Idaho. Political planning and potato economics don't seem to mix.

How to Get That Homework Done

Miss Gilbert, our grammar school principal, spoke the other night at the regular Parent-Teachers' meeting, on getting children to do their homework when they want to listen to the radio.

"We musn't give them a flat 'no'," Miss Gilbert said. "If we adults really believe in tolerance and moderation, we should instill these qualities in our children. Listening to the radio is fine—in moderation—as long as homework gets done, too."

From where I sit, the lady was dead-right. This radio vs. homework problem is a wonderful way to see to it that our youngsters acquire the sensible moderate habits they'll need later on.

I've never believed in hard and fast rules—except where absolutely necessary. Let the other fellow do as he likes, as long as he's temperate and tolerant. Guess that's why I've never felt we should quarrel with the fellow who is partial to a glass of beer—the "Beverage of Moderation."

GENERAL JOHN REGAN

SOME writers among the Irish, known to be a humor-loving people, have lately been producing a much more serious sort of literature. The dramatist Sean O'Casey, for example, has bitterly offended many of his fellow-countrymen by writing of the seamy side of Irish life.

Such offense would not have been committed by the late vicar James O. Hannay, better known under his pen-name of George A. Birmingham. His novels all looked on the laughable side of life.

Perhaps his best novel, "General John Regan," told of the visit of an American millionaire to a West Irish town, which was so sleepy that he decided to wake it up. He therefore expressed his wonder that the town had never erected a statue to its most famous native son, General John Regan, who had helped Bolivia win its independence. The real reason for this seeming indifference was that General Regan never existed. Not knowing this and being unwilling to be found wanting, the whole town set to work to create a memorial. The leader, Dr. Lucius O'Grady, more than suspected the truth, but headed the movement out of a sheer love of excitement. Eventually the statue was erected by the gift of the millionaire, and the town had a new hero.

"General John Regan" was a successful play in New York a generation ago. It is still remembered partly because in it the playwright Noel Coward began his dramatic career in a non-speaking part.

WHAT IS FRIENDSHIP?

HOW FAR should a man go for his friend? There have been demands that Secretary of State Dean Acheson should resign because he has said that Alger Hiss is still his friend despite his conviction for perjury. Acheson went further and quoted the New Testament, where a certain distinguished authority advocated visiting those in prison.

Some of the criticism of Acheson is founded on the thought that he should have given deeper consideration to the effect of his statements on his official position. A strong argument can be made on that basis. But there also are reflections of a growing tendency to assume that anyone accused of a crime must be guilty. The friend who persists in his belief in the innocence and integrity of a convicted man may sometimes be more justified, in the end, than the accusers who condemned him.

BELIEVING WHAT YOU SAY

"I HAVE said it thrice. What I tell you three times is true." These lines are from "The Hunting of the Snark," the nonsense poem by Lewis Carroll, master of nonsense, whose supreme achievement was "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland." They state a widespread situation. Many a person says something which he does not believe. After constant repetition he becomes firmly impressed with its truth.

Something like this must explain the mental state of the Russian leaders. They have so long repeated the wildest charges against the United States that it is no wonder if by now they believe them themselves.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

This country, more than any other on earth, has, from its very inception, been faced by the necessity of providing a way of life which would make it possible for peoples of varying racial strains and religious concepts to live together in peace, forbearance and amity.

This problem faced George Washington as it faces us. We are today composed of some 50 races of man and of more than 250 religious sects, and we manage surprisingly well. We do not suppress men because of their origins or beliefs; we do not repress differences.

Admittedly, most men believe that theirs is the best origin and the best way of life, and they sometimes look down their noses at those whose antecedents and ways of life are different. But in the sum total of American life, and with rare exceptions, this hurts nobody. Our diversities strengthen rather than weaken us.

Washington, in 1775, was faced by as difficult a situation as ever a man knew. He led a rebel army. If the revolution failed, the rebels would be traitors; if success met his arms, he would establish a new nation. He was fighting a mighty power; yet was uncertain of the support of his own people. He had called for volunteers to march into Canada and 1,100 men were encamped on Cambridge Common under Colonel Benedict Arnold, whom Washington then trusted.

On Sept. 14, 1775, Washington wrote to Arnold, giving him his orders which were enclosed in a covering letter that contained one of the most notable paragraphs in the traditional philosophy of the American people. The wisdom and humanity of Washington's instructions, while pointed to the Canadian expedition, can serve us well in this era of confusion. He wrote as follows:

"Should any American soldier be so base and infamous as to injure any Canadian or Indian, in his person or property, I do most earnestly enjoin you to bring him to such severe and exemplary punishment as the enormity of the crime may require. Should it extend to death itself it will not be disproportional to its guilt at such a time and in such a cause; but I hope and trust, that the grave men who have voluntarily engaged in this expedition, will be governed by far different views. That order, discipline and regularity of behaviour will be as conspicuous, as their courage and valour.

"I also give it in charge to you to avoid all disrespect to or contempt of the religion of the country and its ceremonies. Prudence, policy, and a true Christian spirit, will lead us to look with compassion upon their errors without insulting them. While we are contending for our own liberty, we should be very cautious of violating the rights of conscience in others, ever considering that God alone is the judge of the hearts of men, and to Him only in this case, they are answerable."

Mental Illness Still Major Problem to Modern Doctors

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THOUGH our knowledge of mental illness has advanced greatly during recent years, it is still one of the greatest problems facing modern medicine.

Shock treatment has, it is true, brought improvement to many who suffer from mental disorders but not all patients respond to this method.

Recently, a brain operation, known as topectomy, has been used in cases where shock treatment failed. Schizophrenia is perhaps the most frequent of all mental disorders. In these cases, best results from the operation are to be expected in patients who still show evidence of drive and whose normal emotional pattern has not been obliterated by the disease. In other words, people who still enjoy periods of normal mental well-being benefit most from topectomy. Those over 45 get no improvement, especially where the symptoms have been present for a long time; hence, it is not performed in the older group of patients.

Further Improvement

The operation has also been employed in other types of mental disturbance, such as depression. Poor results have been obtained in the treatment of Parkinson's disease or paralysis agitans.

After operation, there seems to be an immediate improvement if the eventual outcome is a successful one. For about 24 hours after operation, the mental disturbance may seem to be worse, but about 4 or 5 days later, improvement is noted in the favorable cases. The patient tires easily, but this symptom gradually disappears. Technical abilities are not affected by the operation, so that, for example, musicians and painters are able to resume their work within several weeks after the operation. Lack of bowel and bladder control may occur for a period up to 30 days, but this is only temporary.

In 54 patients in whom the operation has been performed in the past two years, none succumbed. Good results were obtained in one-fifth of the patients with schizophrenia, and another one-fifth were so improved that they can remain at home doing housework but cannot earn their living.

When improvement occurs, it usually takes place within three months. Only two of the patients seem to have been made worse by the operation.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

"EVERY bit of this is a pack of nonsense," said Mark Dustin wearily. "I would trust Ceil with every dime I've got... any time and anywhere."

"We've had plenty of cases where wealthy men trusted their wives and..." Painter remarked.

Dustin let out a snarl of rage and painfully lifted himself to a sitting position, turned about, and slowly swung his legs from the bed. "I won't lie here and listen to such insults. None of this is helping find Celia. She may be in danger. We're wasting time here when we should be out searching for her."

"Take it easy." Shayne moved over, caught up his legs and put them back on the bed, then went to the door and called the doctor. He said, "Painter has done his worst, and your patient still survives. He brushed past the doctor and went across the room to the telephone, looked up a number, called it, and stood with the receiver to his ear while Painter and Jessup filed out of the sick room.

Painter came over and stood behind him and asked fretfully, "Who are you calling now?"

"Walter Voorland. But he doesn't answer." He cradled the receiver and looked up another number, called it, and waited until the phone rang three times before there was a click and Randolph's voice said, "Yes?"

Shayne hung up without answering. He said grimly, "If I were chief of detectives on Miami Beach I'd get every man on my force out to search for Mrs. Dustin."

"Whom did you call that last time," Painter demanded.

"That's what I'd like to find out." Shayne picked up his hat and started toward the door.

Shayne said, "Out," and kept on going.

* * *

Earl Randolph lived in a modern, four-story apartment building in Miami's northeast section. There was a small foyer with brass mailboxes indicating the names and apartment numbers of the occupants. Randolph's name was over 3-D. Shayne pushed the 4-A button and waited. When the electric latch on the inside door clicked, he entered, went down a narrow hallway to the self-service elevator and went up to the third floor.

He found apartment 3-D and pressed the button. Randolph opened the door. He wore a white shirt open at the neck, the sleeves rolled up above his elbows. He blinked at Shayne, and an expression of complete surprise came over his round face.

"Of course not." Randolph quickly regained his poise and stepped back. The detective removed his hat and hung it on a hatrack beside Randolph's wide-brimmed Panama.

The living room was filled with smoke, and a card table drawn up in front of the day bed was littered with papers and newspaper clippings from two cardboard files. The ashtray was piled high with cigarette butts, and an almost empty tall glass stood beside it.

Randolph said apologetically, "I'm afraid it's rather close in here. Got to working and forgot to open a window." He went across to open one, then asked, "Have a drink?"

"Not now. I had too much earlier this evening." He ruefully indicated the bruise on his jaw. "Cracked up my car and got this clip on the jaw." He moved to a deep chair and sank into it. "What have you been doing all evening?"

"Working." Randolph sat down behind the littered table. "I came straight home from the Sunlux and began going through my old files. I..." He paused, rubbing a blunt forefinger thoughtfully across his mustache. "I think I may have turned up something interesting, Mike."

Shayne said carelessly, "Tim Rourke said he'd been trying to get you all evening, but you didn't answer the phone."

"My phone has been acting up. Just a little while ago it rang and no one answered when I took up the receiver."

Shayne nodded and said, "Maybe that's the reason Tim couldn't get you. Do you mean you've turned up something on the ruby bracelet?"

"I don't know. There could be some connection. At least, there are some interesting angles." The insurance agent leaned back and carefully placed the tips of thick fingers together. "About star rubies in general... and Walter Voorland's connection with them in particular," he ended quietly.

"Are you working on it, Mike?"

"Not officially. But Painter accused me of planning the snatch. You heard what Dustin said in the hotel. I've a hunch I may be called in by him. I had another talk with him about half an hour ago."

Sweat glistened on Randolph's round face. He separated his fingertips and took out a handkerchief to wipe it away. "How is he feeling? Any serious complications?"

"They fixed him up at the hospital." Shayne lit a cigarette and broke the matchstick between his fingers and frowned at it. "Mrs. Dustin is a mighty pretty woman. Do you think either of them has a tie-in with the heist?"

Shayne dropped the broken matchstick in the ashtray and spread out his hands. "Painter and you agreed that the job must have been carefully planned. Someone must have tipped off the gang."

"I don't think I said that..." Randolph protested. "I said it had all the earmarks of a professional job. But it could easily have been as you suggested. If they had a lookout in the Sunlux lobby and he spotted Mrs. Dustin going out wearing the bracelet..." Again he let his words trail off speculatively.

"What angles have you dug up?"

Earl Randolph seemed eager to drop the other subject. He leaned forward and rustled the papers on the table. "A couple of other cases involving expensive star rubies, Mike. Both of them sold by Voorland and insured for large sums. Both stolen in hold-ups somewhat similar to the one tonight," and never recovered. The policies were paid in full in both cases."

"I thought you and Voorland both stated tonight that the star ruby cannot be cut up and resold ...and because of that fact, we would almost surely have an offer from the gang."

"Theoretically that's true, Mike. That's why I began to check my old records as soon as I came back from the hotel. I discovered a couple of very queer coincidences. Listen to this:

"October twelfth, nineteen forty-three," he continued, reading from a typewritten sheet. "Policy issued to James T. King at the Tropical Towers Aparement, Miami, Florida, for eighty thousand dollars on a perfect eight-and-one-half carat star ruby ring. Purchased from Voorland for one hundred grand. It was stolen less than a week after the policy was issued. Never recovered. We paid the policy in full in December."

"Wasn't that a lot of money for one ruby that size?"

"Not in nineteen forty-three. I appraised the stone myself and recommended the policy."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

YOUR FUTURE

Two good Mercurial majors today favor writing, literary and artistic expression. Good time for conferences and consultations. With courage, discretion and patience you will doubtless succeed in the next year. The child born today should be an original character.

HANDICAP—(HAND-i-kap)—noun; a race or contest in which, in order to equalize chances of winning, an artificial disadvantage is imposed on a supposedly superior contestant, or an artificial advantage is given to one supposedly inferior; also the advantage given or the disadvantage imposed; figuratively, any disadvantage that renders success more difficult. Origin: From Hand-in-cap, in allusion to a certain old sport.

FOLKS OF FAME—GUESS THE NAME

1—He was a favorite stage and motion picture actor whom the fathers of the present youngest generation will remember well. He never seemed to get the girl in his pictures, but, after saving her from the ruffians, and reuniting the lovers, he left them in a clinch, and rode away over the sage brush on his trusty horse. He was born in Newburgh, N. Y., and made his stage debut at 19. He supported the famous actress, Helena Modjeska. He began his screen career in Blue Blazes Rawden, then followed The Tiger Man, Wagon Tracks, etc. Sand, The Cradle of Courage, O'Malley of the Mounted, The Three Word Brand, Travelin' On, and Wild Bill Hickok were others movies of his. He died in 1946. What was his name?

2—This American educator and statesman was born in Franklin, Mass., May 4, 1796. Until he was 15 he never attended school more than eight or ten weeks in a year. A good college preparatory teacher helped him, and in six months he fitted himself for admission to the sophomore class at Brown university, Providence, R. I. He graduated with highest honors in 1819. He took courses in law, tutored at Brown and acted as librarian. Taking an interest in public affairs, he was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1827. Educational standards being unsatisfactory, he undertook their reform first in Massachusetts. He studied methods abroad, and on his return was assailed for his progressive views. He was elected to United States Congress. In 1853 he assumed the presidency of a new college in southern Ohio which was to be non-sectarian and open on equal terms to both sexes. He died at Yellow Springs, O., Aug. 2, 1859. Who was he?

CIO Chiefs Absent From Gompers Anniversary Dinner | Lewis Also Among Missing At Strictly AFL Gathering

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The division in the "House of Labor" was never more clearly illustrated than at the recent AFL memorial dinner on the 100th anniversary of the birth of the late Samuel Gompers.

No CIO officials, many of whom cut their labor teeth in the Federation's ranks years ago, were present to join in the tribute to the first president of the AFL. More significant, neither was John L. Lewis.

Samuel Gompers

The occasion was strictly an AFL show and none of the other union leaders were considered in sufficiently good standing to allow their attendance. Labor observers especially noted Lewis' absence. The United Mine Workers president was as close to Gompers as any one in the labor movement.

Yet Lewis, currently out of the AFL and feuding with its official hierarchy, was missing from the dinner tendered to his onetime benefactor and counselor.

● BUDGET CUTS—Both Republicans and Democrats on Capitol Hill are talking budget cutting and deficit reduction. But the real test will come when they vote on appropriations for the 1951 fiscal year.

Informed forecasts are that, when the figures are added up, the dent they will make in the budget will be comparatively small—not more than one or two billion dollars at the most.

Probably the main reason for this is that 1950 is an election year. Neither side will alienate large sections of the west by voting against big flood control, reclamation and power projects. There will be a tendency to go slow in slashing foreign aid because it would mean reducing American farmers' markets.

This is the old story. It will not be changed until public sentiment against deficit financing reaches such a stage as to outweigh the group pressures that force through huge spending programs.

* * * *

The chief executive has decided to postpone action until the final days of this session of Congress—then push it through. He reportedly believes that this will be a sure-fire way to get acceptance for at least one more year.

* * * *

● DIPLOMATIC PROBE—Look for a congressional investigation of the State department in connection with charges that United States policy toward China has been influenced by a "left-wing group."

The department has been under increasing fire from GOP members of Congress and some of the Republican legislators have made it clear that they will push for a full airing of the charges.

Names likely to pop up at any future hearings are those of W. Walton Butterworth, John S. Service and John Carter Vincent—department officials who have been criticized by GOP congressmen.

Chief Against

Brannan Plan

According to numerous reports, Kline had been slated for the post if Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had been elected president. The subject came up again at a recent news conference. He remarked that he was a Republican who had voted for Al Smith in 1928 and Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1940, and added that there was nothing personal in his reported row over the Brannan Plan.

He said he had visited the Dewey camp only once to discuss farm problems and the cabinet post was not mentioned. He wound up by saying that he did "absolutely nothing" for Dewey and someone added, "Neither did anybody else." Kline joined heartily in the laughter.

A Senate committee wants to spend $100,000 to investigate gambling. . .6 to 5 they come back for more money.

The Senate will look into the slot machine and roulette racket, but there is no present intention of checking on the Marshall Plan, which is our biggest gamble.

Tito has been very nice about taking our aid. He says he doesn't want any strings attached.

And we have assured him that we wouldn't think of obligating anyone merely by giving away money.

When will the world learn that we give it just because we've got more than we need to keep our own people busted.

Portugal has just been given $2 million to recover from the war it didn't get into and it's no more than we would do for any other smart country.

Woman Says All Fashions Made To Attract The Men

PARIS, Feb. 23—"The dominating motive of fashion is sex, for by changing the styles of their clothes, women attract men."

That is the opinion of—of all people—a woman. She is Dr. Gertrude Drah, one of Europe's leading psychoanalysts who has just taken a professional look-see at the 1950 Paris fashion shows.

Dr. Drah's statement follows: She says there are many reasons why women choose their clothes, but they all boil down, she says, to one aim: To attract men!

"The fashion pendulum rocks back and forth from year to year but only because women demand a "new look" in their fight for the male.

"The 1950 styles, reminiscent of the 1920s, will appeal to men and women for different reasons.

"The lowered waistlines, blousing bodices and short-cut hair will remind some elderly women of their girlhood, of romantic and sentimental experiences when they were young. They will be transported back to the time of carefree youth—and for some this will be a means of escapism.

"Men now between 25 and 30 will be influenced very strongly by the new fashion trend that recalls the 1920s. They obtained their first impression of women from their mothers, who in the '20s wore short skirts, lower waistlines and whose arms often were bare.

"These young men are likely to react favorably to the new styles of short skirts and bloused tops. The oedipus complex present in their sub-concscious will attract them toward women dressed that way.

"Women today seem to demand an escape from reality. Frightened by an insecure, threatening future in the atomic age, they dream of romantic foreign countries, exotic climates, luscious lounging in tropical lands.

"The dress called Baleares in Maggy Rouff's collection is one for these escapists who dream of avoiding an average life and whose minds refuse to face reality. Baleares is an evening dress with a white cotton bodice and short purple and green printed skirt. The demure top satisfies the weak will—for the woman only dreams of this different life. But the exotic colors of the skirt provide escape.

"For the egoistic type of woman who wants to accentuate her personality with aggressive colors and striking forms—to eliminate other women—there is a dress called Sirocco. It is orange in color and can be seen from afar, and the shade contrasts strongly with a black plumed hat.

"Sirocco is indeed a dress to overwhelm other women — but Maggy Rouff's gown Chanoinesse, on the other hand, is designed to overwhelm men!

LOSES 27 LBS. TOLEDO LADY PRAISES RENNEL

"I can truly say I wouldn't be without Rennel," writes Mrs. B. M. Harmsen, 2644 Oak Grove Pl., Toledo 12, Ohio. "Since taking Rennel I have lost 27 lbs., and feel better in every way. I did weigh 157 lbs., but now at 130 lbs. I feel in trim at 59 years of age."

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender more youthful curves—if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Insist on genuine Rennel.

1949 Fire Cost In Ohio Shows Drop

Chief Wise Notes Marshal's Report

Fire losses throughout Ohio in 1949 were considerably less than in 1948, according to Circleville Fire Chief Talmer Wise.

The Circleville fire chief said that a report made by Harry J. Callan, state fire marshal, this week shows that in 1948, there were 22,000 fires reported with a loss of $25,480,564.

It was the largest loss in the 50-year history of the state office.

In 1949, the state suffered 19,271 fires with a reduction of 11.2 percent and a monetary loss of $20,835,652 with a reduction of 18.2 percent. The estimate of fire losses in the nation was $670 million, a six percent decrease.

The greatest contributing cause of fires and fire losses continues to be faulty electrical wiring.

* * *

THE CARELESS use of matches and smoking is second in the number of fires and third in line in property loss. Faulty stoves, boilers, pipes, etc., are third in line in the number of fires and second in property loss.

Some 38 percent of all fires and 20.3 percent of all losses occur in dwellings.

"This should certainly demonstrate the fact that fire safety should begin at home," Wise declared, adding, "Twenty-one million dollars is still a lot of money to go up in smoke.

Callan's report concluded:

"I am giving a lot of credit to the untiring efforts of public spirited citizens in fire prevention work, as well as the work of the paid and volunteer fire departments throughout the state. With their continued vigilance, we hope to further reduce Ohio's fire losses and make the Golden Anniversary of the state fire marshal's office something to be remembered."

Banker Says Long-Term Credit To Hurt U.S.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—A Wisconsin banker has warned that millions of persons "are being taken out of the market for a long time to come" because of 80 to 100 percent real estate mortgages, improvement loans, two-year loans on automobiles and other purchase debts.

The warning came from Kenneth K. Duvall, president of the First National Bank of Appleton, Wis., at the mid-Winter meeting of the Ohio Bankers Association. He said:

"If the economy runs onto the shoals of depression because of presently unwise credit and debt, it will most likely be due to the financial indigestion of the individual consumer.

"Such a course does not necessarily point to excessive bad debt losses by those who extend credit. But it does point to one thing our nation cannot very well face—a serious downward spiralling of the economy and the inevitable intervention by a government already in debt over $260 billion and unable to bring its own accounts into balance at the peak of prosperity.

"If the use of credit by individuals has any prudent upper limit, it has already gone some distance toward reaching it with real estate loans and consumer credit now at an all-time high."

Flashlight SOS Saves Couple

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Two men had a flashlight and a working knowledge of the Morse code slept in their own beds today, rather than on a small Potomac river pier, with the temperature around 14 above.

The men, who departed before they were identified, were left on the pier off National Airport to work on a lighting system. Apparently they were forgotten, and they remained on the pier until their pleas for help—"SOS" in Morse with a flashlight—were noticed by men in the airport control tower. A crash boat was sent to the rescue.

Father's Slaying Is Exposed By Bone Discovery

PONTIAC, Mich., Feb. 23—Human bones recovered from a shallow barnyard grave in Clawson, Mich., have been identified as the remains of a 52-year-old auto worker whose slaying two years ago was kept secret by his family.

The identification climaxed the story of one of the dead man's daughters who said he was fatally shot by a son, his body buried behind a cowshed by four of her brothers, and the family sworn to secrecy.

According to the story, the family told neighbors the father had become ill and had been "sent away."

Oakland County authorities sent out an alarm for 28-year-old Marine Sgt. Carson James whose sister, Mrs. Muriel Hockersmith, 26, of Washington, said he killed their father, Stanley, on Thanksgiving Day, 1947, after an argument.

The Marine was reported motoring cross-country from Silver Springs, Md., to a new assignment at the Naval Ordnance Test Station at China Lake, Cal. He was due to report at his new post March 1.

The story told by Mrs. Hockersmith, wife of a painter, was corroborated, authorities said, by the man's widow, Mrs. Ruth James, and two other children—Hugh, 18, and Mrs. Laurene Martin, 23, of Chelsea, Mich. Hugh was held in Oakland County jail as a material witness.

Diphtheria In Calves Is Possible

Best Gives Tips On Proper Care

If calves show little interest in eating, and merely stand around smacking their lips and drooling, it may be a warning sign to their owners, Larry Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent warned this week.

"These are sometimes telltale signs of calf diphtheria," the farm authority said. "Calves confined during long Winter months are more prone to this disease than at any other time.

"If calves exhibit this behavior, the inside of their mouths should be checked for spots of dead tissue which may appear on the inner surfaces of the cheeks, around the gums, or on the tongue.

"Sometimes in cases of calf diphtheria the side of the face may be swollen. The young animals' throats generally become so sore that they are unable to swallow and they lose weight rapidly. Death losses are high."

* * *

TO PREVENT outbreaks, the agent recommended avoidance of overcrowding and also urged that calf quarters be kept clean. At the first sign of an outbreak, the sick calves should be isolated from the others. Buckets and other feeding equipment used for feeding infected animals should be sterilized before other animals are fed from them. Best added:

"Many diphtheria calves can be saved by the veterinarian if treatment is begun at first signs of an outbreak."

Per Capita Farm Income In 1949 Set At $763

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—The Agriculture Department reported that the total net income of farm folk averaged $763 per person in 1949.

The average per person income received last year was 16 percent below the 1948 figure. But while the average farm person took a 16 percent cut, the average for non-farm workers was $1,555, only one percent less than last year.

Per capita income of persons on farms in 1949 dropped for the first time since 1938, the department said.

In 1946 and 1947 the per capita income of farm people averaged about 60 percent as large as the average for non-farmers. This difference widened to 58 percent in 1948 and 49 last year.

The department listed the total national income last year at $208 billion. Of that, farmers got about $21 billion from all sources and non-farmers received $187 billion.

Mother's Bone To Give Lad Use Of Ailing Arm

His pretty mother, 27-year-old Mary Skidmore gave part of her pelvic bone for an operation which will give Jimmy normal use of his left arm.

Both are recovering satisfactorily in a Columbus hospital. They underwent surgery Monday to have a portion of Mrs. Skidmore's pelvic bone transplanted to Jimmy's arm.

In the operation, the cyst was removed and the hollow was filled with a three-inch segment of bone from Mrs. Skidmore.

Jimmy's father, Warren E. Skidmore, an equipment salesman, and his brothers, Larry, 7, and Ronnie, 6, are staying with an aunt until the hospitalized pair recover.

Judge And Press Give Assistance

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Opal Marie Beverly, 23, may arrive home in Williamson, W. Va., broke, but she will get there—through the courtesy of Washington's Judge Frank H. Myers and the press.

Miss Beverly appeared in Myers' "drunk court," where she admitted she had spent her last cent on drinks. She added that she had bought a through ticket from New York, where she had been working, to her home in Williamson.

The judge fined her one dollar, and then reached under the judicial robes and pulled out a dollar bill to pay the fine. A reporter paid her cab fare to Union Station.

One-Eyed Goat May Wink Soon

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—Thousands of gallons of bock beer, the seasonal amber fluid that goes on sale March 17, is brewing in Ohio.

The traditional Spring beverage-tonic is aged from five to seven weeks before the annual St. Patrick's Day sale.

It's the day you wink at the one-eyed goat—and, if he winks back, you've had enough—so the saying goes.

Bock is a special thick brew made in the usual manner but with black malt and other ingredients added.

Lustron Says Profit To Show

Prefab Company Business 'Booms'

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—An official spokesman for the Lustron Corp. said that the prefab housing firm expected to turn a profit in the third quarter of the year if allowed to continue operations.

The spokesman said the foreclosure action taken by the Reconstruction Finance Corp. against the company had not altered management's belief that a profit level was not far in the future. The statement continued:

"Lustron is still a going concern, and given a reasonable hand and free operation we will begin to show a cash return on the taxpayer's dollar very shortly.

Government action to recover RFC loans to the Columbus housing concern has, according to company officials, sent business soaring.

The spokesmen said Lustron still expected to sell 4,500 homes through dealers and an additional 4,000 to project builders. He pointed out that 8,000 homes yearly was considered the "break-even point" and that sales might top estimates by as much as 50 percent.

* * *

LUSTRON'S spokesman said full, detailed plans had been submitted to the RFC, outlining a program for dealer expansion and the requirements for housing project sales.

RFC decided to foreclose its mortgage with Lustron President Carl Strandlund because he has been unable to meet payments on a series of loans granted by the agency.

Strandlund has obtained $37.5 million from the RFC. For the last several months he has been trying to work out a solution to the financing problem without success.

The spokesman said that "he has offered us suggestions which invariably involve new money and we have decided against any further loans."

If the RFC wins its foreclosure action, the official said "we may try to lease out the plant." He added:

22 OSU Pledges 'Kidnap' Chief

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23 — Twenty-two Phi Gamma Delta fraternity pledges at Ohio State university may rue the day they "kidnapped" their pledge master, Philip Alexander of Bay Village.

Alexander didn't say it exactly like that, but when he got back to Columbus yesterday, he vowed not to forget.

The university junior had hitch-hiked from Ottawa Lake, Mich., to Toledo yesterday, borrowed money from friends and returned to Columbus by bus. The pledges still have three weeks under Alexander's jurisdiction.

RAF Officer Says Reds Lack Big Bombers

LONDON, Feb. 23—A Royal Air Force officer, who served as a wartime British air intelligence agent, declared today that Soviet Russia and her satellites are producing between 40,000 and 50,000 planes a year.

The officer, Wing Commander Asher Lee, said:

"In the realm of tactical air warfare, she (Russia) probably is at least as strong as any other air force or group of air forces in the world."

He added, however, that Russia has no long-range bomber to match America's B-36.

"Even more important," Lee said, "is the fact that, at the moment, the Soviet air force has no long-range bomber which will carry the atomic bomb more than 1,000 miles from its base.

"That is the maximum operational radius of action of the TU70, the longest range bomber aircraft in the Soviet air force." (The TU70 is comparable to the American B-29 Superfortress.)

Lee expressed the opinion that the Soviet air force could not, at this time, attempt to bomb any such distant targets as Washington or New York unless it could acquire intermediate bases such as Greenland.

Wild Gunman Kills 3, Wounds 23 Neighbors

ANCONA, Italy, Feb. 23—The nearby town of Filottrano was turned into a battleground yesterday by a 23-year-old Italian peasant who killed his fiancee and two would-be captors, and wounded 23 other persons in a maniacal outbreak.

Cetullio Lillini shot his fiancee to death for unexplained reasons and then rushed into the street, firing wildly.

Two neighbors in the town of 10 thousand persons who tried to halt him were killed.

Throughout the early morning hours Lillini roamed the streets, shooting everyone in sight. He gravely wounded three militiamen who tried to arrest him.

During his wanderings, Lillini pinned the following notice on a wall:

"I am forced to do this. I am sorry if the innocent suffer, but I cannot help it."

Townfolk barricaded themselves in their houses and truckloads of steel-helmeted police poured in from all sides to hunt out the maniac, who was believed to have taken refuge in pine woods on the outskirts.

Lillini's reign of terror lasted for five hours before he fled.

Harriman Says End Of ERP To Hurt Europe

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 — W. Averell Harriman, U. S. roving ambassador has warned that elimination of the Marshall Plan now would throw millions out of work and start Europe down the road to Communism.

Harriman told the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday that if American financial aid were terminated during the middle of the European cooperation program, "the European countries would simply have to slash drastically their imports from us." He declared:

"They would have to eliminate imports of capital equipment, without which they cannot achieve self support. They would have to cut down imports of industrial raw materials, throwing millions out of work.

"Cuts in food and feed imports would at once reduce living standards and farm output. With production down, exports would dwindle and imports would have to be still further cut. The fateful downward spiral would be started. Europe would again be faced with the hunger, chaos and despair in which Communism breeds."

Political 'Blood Bank' Is Lashed

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—A Cincinnati Democrat charged today that State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson is being backed in his campaign for the U. S. Senate by "a powerful undercover coalition of big-money Democrats and Republican financial forces."

Walter A. Kelley, also a primary candidate for the senatorial nomination, said:

"This unnatural political blood bank was founded to bring about the defeat of both Governor Lausche, a Democrat, and Senator Taft, a Republican."

JESSUP REPORT AWAITED

Policy-Makers Face New Decisions In Cold War

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 — American policy-makers soon will face another vital decision in the Cold War struggle with Russia.

This has no direct connection with the A-bomb and H-bomb control controversy — about which the Russian people have not been told anyway by their government.

It is a decision concerning the Far East, where Russia has the initiative through the Chinese Communist victory and the new Moscow-Peiping 30-year military and political alliance.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup, roving American ambassador, is returning home from his Far-East tour. He will make his report and then it is up to the State Department.

Russia's recognition of the Ho Chi-minh rebel faction in French Indo-China was one of the most dangerous developments in the East-West struggle since the Berlin blockade.

Amid the present controversy about atomic control, pegged on the idea Russia might make a peaceful concession, foreign observers point out that American diplomacy already had given Russia a chance to let the Cold War cool off.

* * *

THIS WAS WHEN Secretary of State Acheson declared a "hands off" policy toward Formosa, China, and the Southeastern Asian nations.

If the Russians wanted to relax the situation they never would have abruptly recognized the Ho regime in Indo-China.

The Russians increased the pressure by recognizing Ho, the slippery Moscow-trained rebel leader who has been fighting the French ever since Japan surrendered.

The implication is that soon arms and other aid will be flowing to Ho's guerrilla army through Communist China.

The Russian recognition did not give American policy-makers an opportunity to drop the East-West contest broken off when Chinese Nationalist Leader Chiang Kai-shek was left out on a limb, Formosa, after the Communist mainland victory.

The Kremlin forced an increased struggle on a battlefield which Washington wanted to neutralize, and it led to Anglo-American recognition of the French-backed Bao Dai government.

The American government, after studying Jessup's report, must decide whether to limit its aid to Southeast Asia or to give it heavy support, including arms.

New Orleans Serious After Mardi Gras End

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 23—Residents of New Orleans went to church yesterday under dreary, dripping skies to usher in the holy season of Lent.

The weather, like the city itself, changed abruptly as the gay, make-believe rule of Mardi Gras monarchs came to an end.

Shrove Tuesday was bright and sunny, with temperatures in tune with the people celebrating the annual carnival. Comus, god of mirth, finished his march through the city streets to cheering throngs.

The sombre skies yesterday set the scene for a return to serious thinking, to the period of prayer and fasting before the advent of Easter.

The Mardi Gras celebration was one of the biggest ever. Enjoying a full share of the spotlight were the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. They entered into the spirit of carnival completely.

The duchess clapped gleefully as the rolling throne of Rex came into view and the duke smiled when a clown kissed him and snapped a balloon on the side of his royal head.

The duke bowed from the waist and the duchess curtsied before the thrones of the make-believe monarchs, Rex and Comus, as elaborate balls brought the famous Mardi Gras season to an end.

Fire Hits Plant

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 23—The explosion of a steam boiler in Fercliff Cleaners plant here was blamed today for a $2,000 fire which swept the building yesterday.

A fish has few nerves around the mouth and consequently does not feel much pain when hooked.

Brooklyn Fox Is Lassoed By Gotham Cop

"Yoicks!"

Outside the temperature was at sixes and sevens—degrees that is—but outside dashed the revived Reynard. Tracking him on the cold concrete clumped the finest of New York's fox hunters—in unfashionable blue coats—and the first horseless hunt of the Bronx social season was on.

But briefly. For city-spoiled foxes lost their foxiness and soon become candidates for the worktables of their remote cousin, I. J.

This one leaped to a wall—and promptly fell down. He was quickly lassoed by Patrolman Leo Maurer, the Gene Autrey of the New York police.

Weather Saves Man's Wallet

A gunman entered a car owned by Kenneth Barren today and ordered him to start driving, but Barren pointed out that his windshield was covered with ice. The understanding intruder agreed to let Barren scrape some of it off.

While doing so Barren noticed that the armed thief could not see out, so he took off and called the police. When he returned the gunman and the car were gone, but Barren still had his wallet.

Hunters Turn Into Firemen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23—Pink hunting coats turned into red firemen's shirts for 15 fox hunters, when a Maryland barn caught fire.

Inside the coats (or shirts) were 15 members of the Potomac Hunt Club who abandoned their annual Washington's Birthday fox hunt to lead four thoroughbred horses and six prize cattle from the burning barn of Farmer William C. Hanson.

The hunters were riding by when they noticed the flames. Damage to the barn was estimated at $10,000. The fox got away.

4 Nations To Merge Naval Power

Yanks To Assist In Mock Warfare

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 — The Navy has announced that U. S., British, Canadian and Dutch warships will stage a four-nation display of Atlantic Treaty sea power in Caribbean maneuvers during mid-March.

The exercises, first of the kind ever scheduled, will involve the Battleship Missouri, four U. S. and two foreign aircraft carriers, airships, fighter and bomber squadrons and more than 60 cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

It was understood that the maneuvers, described as "anti-submarine and air defense exercises," were arranged through the Atlantic treaty military committee established last November.

Canada is sending the Carrier Magnificent and the Destroyer Micmac. Britain will contribute the Cruiser Glascow and the Sloops Snipe and Sparrow. The Netherlands is sending the Carrier Karel Doorman and a cruiser and a sloop.

* * *

THE FOUR-nation display will follow U. S. solo maneuvers scheduled to involve 143 ships and 80,000 men in a mock assault on the island of Vieques, near San Juan, Puerto Rico, March 7-8.

Joint maneuvers of the U. S. and British Asiatic fleets are to be held in Philippine waters March 3-10.

A Navy spokesman said the U. S. will use the 45,000-ton Carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt, the 27,000-ton Carrier Philippine Sea and the small carriers Palau and Mindoro in the international exercises.

A U. S. fleet will maneuver with and against a British-Canadian fleet all the way from west of Martinique to Charleston, S. C.

Planes of the two fleets will be scored for "strikes" on each other. Eleven U. S. submarines will join the British-Canadian forces in an attempt to stop an advancing American unit led by the Philippine Sea.

The maneuvers with the Dutch ships will be conducted separately in the Guantanamo Bay area of Cuba. The Dutch vessels are already on a training cruise taking them to Cuban waters.

Lamb Declares Rhodes Seeking Only 'Publicity'

Lamb launched an attack on U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft. Speaking on his television station in Columbus, Lamb, a once-considered Democrat candidate for the U. S. Senate, declared:

"Sen. Taft is becoming itchy. He has to live with the Taft-Hartley Act and he has to face farmers who remember his words about removing price supports. He has to face housewives who remember his antics in seeking to remove OPA ceilings.

"His charge that I, many, many years ago, belonged to many civil liberties organizations will not answer the questions."

Of Rhodes' charge that Lamb is "spearheading the democratic campaign in Ohio to defeat Sen. Taft, Lamb said the Republican gubernatorial candidate is making "a desperate bid for some publicity in hanging on the coattails of Sen. Taft."

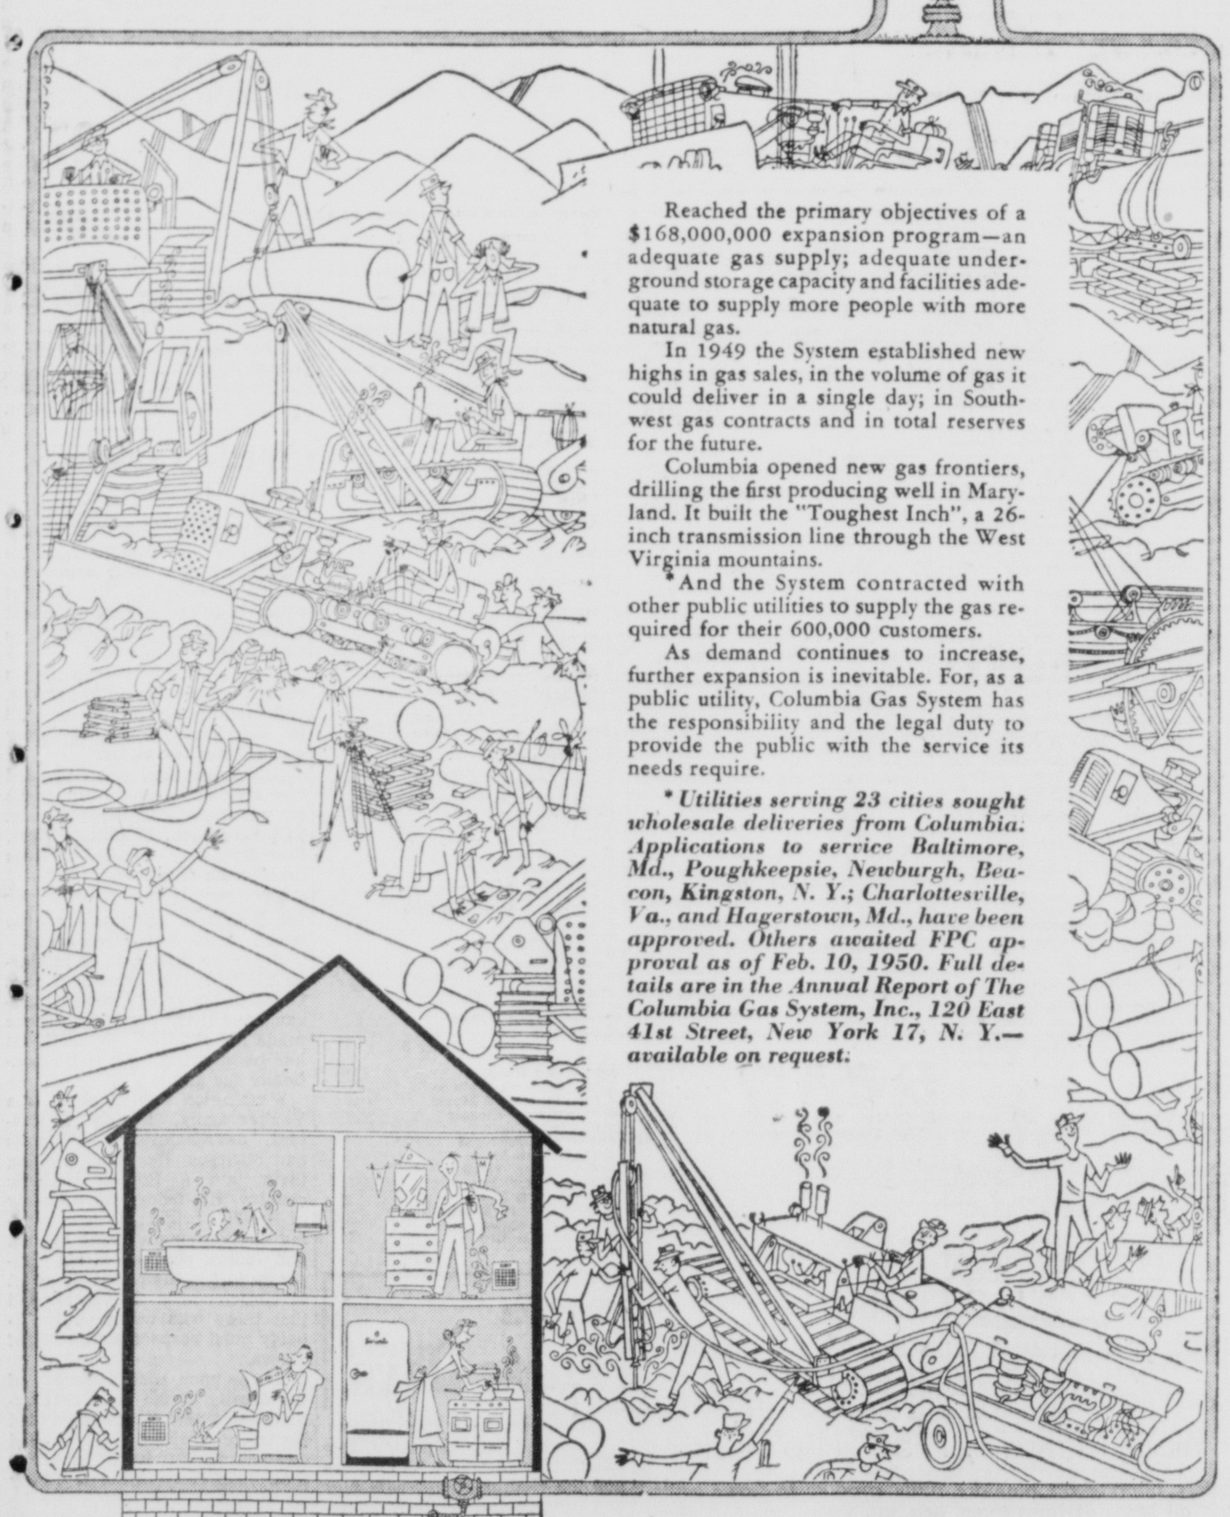
NATURAL GAS in 1950 ... Because
The Columbia Gas System In 1949...



Reached the primary objectives of a $168,000,000 expansion program—an adequate gas supply; adequate underground storage capacity and facilities adequate to supply more people with more natural gas.

In 1949 the System established new highs in gas sales, in the volume of gas it could deliver in a single day; in Southwest gas contracts and in total reserves for the future.

*And the System contracted with other public utilities to supply the gas required for their 600,000 customers.

As demand continues to increase, further expansion is inevitable. For, as a public utility, Columbia Gas System has the responsibility and the legal duty to provide the public with the service its needs require.

 Utilities serving 23 cities sought wholesale deliveries from Columbia. Applications to service Baltimore, Md., Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Beacon, Kingston, N. Y.; Charlottesville, Va., and Hagerstown, Md., have been approved. Others awaited FPC approval as of Feb. 10, 1950. Full details are in the Annual Report of The Columbia Gas System, Inc., 120 East 41st Street, New York 17, N. Y.— available on request.*

Sokolsky's

From the very beginning, this nation viewed war with sadness and the victims of war with pity and compassion. While Washington had to go into Canada, he did not regard those people as enemies, to be despoiled, any more than we today hate the Japanese or the Germans. Surely, he would have approved of the wonderful work of Gen. Douglas MacArthur who came the conqueror and remained the friend of the Japanese people.

But more than that, he implored his troops to remember that God's house is of many mansions and that he would not have made his children so different had he intended them to be identically the same.

Washington was speaking to a Yankee army, largely Protestant, descendants of Pilgrims and Puritans. He was sending them into a Roman Catholic country. His troops were mostly of English origin; he was sending them among a mixed French and Indian population. He impressed upon them that the right of conscience is individual, and that those who would enjoy liberty must respect the liberty of others.

It was upon such a theme of the dignity of the individual human being that Washington led his troops to victory and founded our nation. We have inherited that tradition from his day. May we cherish it forever.

Tigers Hope End Season With Win

University Quint Is Friday Foe

Circleville's championship Tiger basketball team will wind up its 1950 basketball schedule Friday when it travels to the home of the University Bucks in Columbus.

The Tigers this year have completed the most successful season of basketball ever turned in by a Circleville club since it became a member team of the South Central Ohio League.

Circleville has won its first SCOL championship with a record of seven wins in eight starts, while it will be looking for its 15th win in 18 starts for the season during its Friday road trip.

The Tigers are highly favored to close out their 1950 record during the invasion of the Bucks. The Bucks fell to an ignominious 50-22 defeat earlier this season in Pickaway Coliseum.

* * *

FIVE TIGERS will play their last regular season game for CHS in the Friday clincher.

Big Jim Starkey, Don Cook, Abe Rihl, Sandy Hill and Ted Sims will close out their playing careers during the tussle. Starkey, Cook, Hill and Rihl are scheduled to be graduated this Spring, while Sims will be over the age limit come next basketball season.

All of the lads will have a chance to play at least one extra game, however, when the CHS'ers play in the district tournament.

Probable starters for the Tigers in the encounter with the Bucks will be John Valentine and Starkey at forwards, Cook at center and Hill and Rihl at guards.

Circleville Coach Dick West will travel to Columbus again Saturday when he is scheduled to draw for his team in the Central district Class "A" tournament, slated to begin Tuesday in Ohio State Fairgrounds Coliseum.

West said that he is permitted to enter an eligibility list of 14 players and dress 12. He added that he has not yet made his selection of substitutes to fill out the list from Steve Brudzinski's reserve team.

Brudzinski's reservists will be seeking to post their 13th win in 18 starts this season during the Friday preliminary match with the junior Bucks.

The local reservists have dropped five contests this season, losing to Grandview, Westerville, Chillicothe, Wilmington and Greenfield.

The reserve preliminary is slated to begin at about 7 p. m. in the Buck gym, followed by the varsity tilt at about 8:15 p. m.

North Tankers Win Tourney

COLUMBUS, Feb. 23—The Polar Bears of Columbus North high lived up to their name yesterday by copping the Central Ohio district swimming meet from eight other competitors in Ohio State's natatorium.

Coach Vince Ardito's boys churned their way to 39 points, collected mainly by placing well in the lower brackets. They scored only two firsts.

JACKSON, ATLANTA FALTER

New Holland, Darby Due For Bid To District Test

Pickaway County basketball fans relaxed Thursday as the smoke cleared from the final eliminations in this year's Pickaway County basketball tournament and braced themselves for the climactic championship battle to be staged in Pickaway Coliseum Friday night.

New Holland Bulldogs and Darby Trojans basketball teams earned the right to meet each other Friday for consolation honors during the Wednesday final eliminations. One of them will go to the district tourney along with Ashville and Walnut, finalists in the winners' bracket.

The Bulldog aggregation advanced into the finals of the losers' bracket when it scored a one-sided 42-24 victory over Jackson Wildcats Wednesday.

Darby registered exactly the same margin of victory over Atlanta later with a 59-41 score.

Ashville ranked as co-champions of the 1950 Pickaway County Basketball League with a record of nine wins in 10 starts, tied for top honors with the Jackson Cats.

• • •

THE CATS, however, have muffed two chances to advance in the county playoffs, finally dropping out of the tourney Wednesday with its loss to New Holland.

Walnut, on the other hand, has fought an uphill battle from its final fourth place standings in the league. The Tigers scored only seven wins in 10 starts during the regular season.

Both teams will be meeting under exactly the same conditions as they did in last year's tournament championship finals, but for one difference—last year Walnut was co-champion during the regular league season.

The Tigers bested Ashville in last year's playoffs to earn the Walnut school its first tournament championship in its history.

All five of the regular starting Walnut players will be playing in their last county tournament game during the Friday fracas. All five starters—Junior Martin, Jack Hardwick, Bill Weaver, Boyd Spangler and Charles Eccard—are slated to receive their diplomas this Spring.

Ashville, on the other hand, will lose only one of its regulars this year, although four of its substitutes will be graduated. The senior starter is Herb Pettibond while the senior subs are David Kraft, Ernie Stevens, Dana Borrer and Charles Harris.

New Holland opened its contest by dealing a lightning jab into the Jackson defensive in the first four minutes of the game when it paced the Cats by an 8-0 margin. Jackson returned to the ball game during the remaining four minutes of the first frame to whittle down the Bulldog lead to 12-7 to end the initial period.

• • •

JACKSON WAS unable to stop the New Holland steam roller, as the Bulldogs racked up scores of 21-12 at the half and 34-15 at the end of the third stanza before winding up the match with the 42-24 final.

Chunky Joe Gooley was high scorer for the winning Bulldog quint with a total of 14 points. Jackson's Ray Hulse paced the Cats with a total of nine points.

The Cats were unable to hit the hoop during the first three periods of the match—as one fan put it, "unable to buy a bucket." Jackson scored only two field goals in the first frame, one in the second and none in the third.

Darby's conquest of Atlanta practically was a replay of the New Holland-Jackson contest as the Trojans leaped into an early lead and maintained a comfortable margin throughout the fracas.

Atlanta's Red Raiders fell to a 14-8 first period disadvantage in the contest, following through by trailing at 35-16 at the midmark and 47-33 going into the homestretch.

Atlanta's amazing Freshman Roger Fox starred in the scoring portion of the game by hooping a total of 20 points to reap high-scoring laurels, while Big Bill Rowley was high scorer for his victorious Darby quintet with a total of 19.

Roscoe Blankenship figured in a scramble for the ball under the Darby basket which netted the Trojans two points. Both Blankenship and a Darby player fought up into the air for possession of the leather, both surprised when the ball shot upward, slapped against the backboard and tumbled through the netting.

Schedule for the finals in the 1950 county championship race is:

FRIDAY

Darby vs. New Holland (consolation), 7:30 p. m.

Ashville vs. Walnut (championship), 9 p. m.

Tournament Manager John Hardin said the doors of the coliseum will be opened at 6:30 p. m. in order to take care of the anticipated overflow crowd.

Harlan-Harget Trampoline Act Goes Over Big

A pair of Ohio State university athletes held the 721 paying customers in Pickaway Coliseum spellbound Wednesday with their gyrating antics on the trampoline.

The performers were Bruce Harlan, Olympics diving champion and fifth-ranking AAU performer on the springing tarp; and Kenneth Harget, who ranks third on the trampoline in the U. S.

Harlan and Harget opened their show with a comedy routine clad in Gay Nineties bathing drawers and an assortment of eye glasses and dangling noses.

The crowd was uproarious throughout the windups of each act, although while the performers spun through their assorted twists and flips the only sounds audible in the Coliseum were the twanging of the springs.

Harlan paved the way for the pair's acclaim during the comedy routine when he launched into a back flip, purposely missed the tarp on his downward trip, landed on his feet on the coliseum floor and skidded nearly 10 feet on his nether end.

Marlene Bauer Still Winning

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 23—Young Marlene Bauer of Midland, Tex., moved a stop nearer another golf championship but her older sister, Alice, was on the sidelines today in the international mixed two-ball tournament.

The 15-year-old sensation of the golf links and her partner, Denny Champagne of Orlando, ousted Bea McWane of Birmingham and Clay Gaddie of Cincinnati, 3 and 2, yesterday over the Dubsdread course here.

Alice Bauer, 19, and former Miami University Golf Captain Al Besselink were eliminated by Kathryn Hemphill and Burl Bolesta, both of Tampa, 1-up.

Burton Upsets George Costner

The New York welterweight, who is a stablemate of Robinson, won a split 10-round decision over George Costner of Cincinnati, in Chicago Stadium last night. Burton's victory not only reversed a decision which Costner was awarded in New York recently but may save Robinson the bother of fighting Costner.

Robinson was scheduled to meet the Ohio boxer in Philadelphia March 22. Costner's loss, however, may cost him the match.

Buckeye Cagers Can Win Big 10 If Illini Win

CHICAGO, Feb. 23—Ohio State may win complete possession of the Big Ten basketball championship Saturday without even playing a game.

The Buckeyes already are certain of a share in the Western Conference honors and if Illinois beats Wisconsin, the Ohioans will own the title all alone.

Ohio State has won 10 of 11 games. Coach Tippy Dye's versatile and veteran aggregation plays its final game against Michigan Monday.

An Illinois victory over Wisconsin is far from impossible since the Illini own an impressive home court record of nine triumphs in eleven games this year in both conference and non-conference contests.

Illinois opened the Big Ten season against Wisconsin and lost 59 to 50 in Madison. But at home the Champaign squad proved powerful enough to hand Ohio State its lone conference defeat. The Illini topped the Ohioans, 66 to 50.

Third place Indiana is host to a tall and improving Iowa team Saturday night. According to the oddsmakers, the Hoosiers are an 11-point favorite.

Northwestern is rated three points better than Michigan for a game in Chicago Stadium and Purdue is expected to climb out of the cellar with a victory over Minnesota. The Boilermakers are ranked a six-point advantage on the basis of their home court.

Reserve Teams Show Talent In County Plentiful

Local sports fans were given a chance to see what is coming up in the county in basketball talent during the Wednesday session of Pickaway County basketball tournament—and they showed they were pleased with its findings.

Williamsport had won the county league crown with an unblemished record of 10 wins in as many starts, while Monroe suffered only one league defeat durig the season.

"We lost only to Mt. Sterling and to Williamsport during the season," pointed out Monroe Coach Clyde Plant after the ball game as he accepted second place trophy for his team.

• • •

Both coaches of the two top-notch Pickaway County reserve teams began their coaching careers in their respective schools last Fall.

Monroe rolled up an 11-8 first-quarter lead over the Williamsporters in the exhibition engagement, losing a single point at the half to lead by a 17-15 margin. The Indian juniors followed through with a 25-19 lead at the three-quarter pole and coasted in with the final 33-24 victory.

Ernest Vermaaten won scoring honors during the tussle with a total of 11 points, while Jack Betts and Diminutive "Mouse" Sullivan tied for honors on the Williamsport team with seven points each.

Washington Era Cited In Address

Radcliff Compares Past With Present

A comparison of modern problems with those faced by President George Washington in 1790 was made Wednesday by Pickaway Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

Addressing an English Merit Society assembly of Circleville high school pupils, Judge Radcliff pointed out that Washington was the only man elected President without opposition and the only man to receive a unanimous vote of the electoral college.

Washington, he continued, was the only President who believed the "republican" form of government would make this country great. He did not believe in "democracy," the judge said.

The two terms, the judge warned, should not be confused with "parties." He defined "republic" as a government by experts, in which "people elect the governing body and forget about it."

In a "Democracy" people keep a constant interest in government through such things as lobbies and initiative and referendum, he explained.

JUDGE RADCLIFF limited the comparison of problems to three matters: internal affairs, national defense and foreign affairs.

Taking up internal affairs first, he told the high school pupils, that states rights posed a problem in Washington's time just as with Dixiecrats today.

In 18th Century America, people thought of themselves as Virginians, Georgians or New Englanders first, as Americans second. But under the patient guidance of Washington provincialism was stamped out and "we emerged a strong nation, ceased being a loosely knit group of sovereign states.

As yet, the judge added, the problem of the Dixiecrats has not been solved.

Although the United Mine Workers did not exist in 1790, the era had a comparable problem. At that time the Cherokee and Chickamauga Indian tribes were demanding better treatment, threatened to go on the war path if they did not get it.

"The answer given that time might well have worked today," the judge said. "It was, 'You will be treated fairly, but if you break the peace, you must suffer the consequences.' "

Turning to national defense, Judge Radcliff reminded the pupils of the Compton Commission, appointed to study means of safeguarding the United States. The report was returned in 1947. Judge Radcliff pointed out that conclusions drawn were similar to those appearing in Washington's report to Congress in 1783.

Washington at that time announced as his principals scientific research, industrial mobilization and stock piling, a small standing army backed by universal military training and "some degree of unification was indicated by the fact that an Army officer suggested creation of the Navy."

DRAWING parallels in foreign affairs of 1790 with today, the judge said the greatest war in history has just ended, in 1790 "we just passed through a revolution and had France as an ally; today all allies want U. S. intervention against a former ally, Russia, while in 1790 "France was clamoring for our help against England."

Washington's solution, said Judge Radcliff, was:

1. To preserve our own ideals of government.
2. Contribute to world peace, but not intervene in problems of individual nations.
3. To transform the world step by step by example of American spirit and leadership.
